BOSS TWEED.

What he Proposed to Tell, and how it became Public—Letter by his Counsel to the Attorney General of New York.

The Negotiations for Tweed's Release.

NEW YORK, June 21.—John J. Townsend, counsel for Wm. M. Tweed, makes public to-day the history of the negotiations with Attorney General Fairchild for the release of Tweed. He says:

On the 23d of February you (Fairchild) and Mr. Peckham in my company, called in the evening to see Tweed at Ludlow street jail. The object of this visit was that you might give Tweed to understand that nothing short of a complete confession of his crimes and accomplices would be accepted by you. In contrast with your subsequent actions that interview stands out most creditable to you. Tweed, I remember, endeavored to give you his idea on subjects on which you desired special information. Nearly six years had elapsed since he had been associated with ring matters, and his memory of some things connected with them had become somewhat indistinct. You declined, however, to suggest any special matter, and said to him in effect that you desired he should consult with me and have me make a proposition to you, thus intimating that in your position as prosecutor you did not think it proper to hold direct communication with him. In accordance with this understanding, I prepared a brief statement in letter form on the 26th of February, and addressed it to you. It contained the names of members of the legislature with whom Tweed had corrupt dealings, and the names of a few others who had been benefitted by ring practices, and was intended only as a summary of what he could do. To show his good faith this letter addressed to you I handed to Peckham, who said he was going to Albany the next day, and I was not a little astonished to learn from you on the 5th of March when I met you at the rooms of the state board of charities in this city that you had not received it. From about this time I believe I neither heard from nor saw anything of you until about the 4th of April, when I met you with your friend Carolan O'Brien. Bryant seemed to work matters to suit yourself. Your confidence in him, of course, induced Tweed to believe he was your monthpiece. I was, in consequence to a great extent ignored—so much so that I seriously considered the propriety of withdrawing from all connection with the matter. The only information I could receive as to how matters stood was through Bryant, and I was informed by him you did not desire Peckham to have anything further to do in the matter. Bryant, from my earliest connection with Tweed's affairs since his return had more or less interested himself in them by pre-ending to convey information to Tweed as to myself from O'Conor, who in fact had had no connection, as he afterwards stated to me, with the ring cases since December 3d. He gained to a considerable degree my confidence and the absolute confidence of Tweed. As early as February I received a letter from him, of which the following is a copy, endorsing Field's letters to Tweed:

GRAND UNION HOTEL, N. Y., Feb. 21st.

Dear Mr. Townsend—I presume you have seen Dewey and heard of his favorable hearing with the Attorney General. I send you enclosed letters as I will not be in town to-morrow. Mr. O. C. having read them, desired me to have them placed in Peckham's hands with the suggestion that the iron was now hot, and it was time to strike. I shall see you to-morrow evening and send you a letter. In case you should meet Peckham to-morrow and should have exact opportunity use them with him and the Attorney General. Yours truly,

O. B. BRYANT.

Mr. Tweed has since informed me while I was impressing upon him the absolute necessity of making a clean breast of his misdeeds in conformity with the tenor and spirit of his letter to O'Conor, and what was then believed to be your wishes, Bryant was advising him it was not your desire he should do so, and that my persistence was only the result of Kelly's advice to make political capital out of it. This, Tweed informs me was the cause of his estrangement from me. This will explain also the cause why Tweed's full statement was not submitted on the 17th of April. Tweed well knows he must conform to your wishes if he expects to be liberated from under his prosecutions. He felt it was comparatively an unimportant feature in his case, and he was impressed for a long time that Bryant really represented you, and during the month of March he had reasons for thinking so and of being confirmed in such belief. For reasons which I never knew my interviews with Peckham were suspended, and when at the Buckingham Hotel one morning prior to the 17th of April I asked you in order to make myself certain on the point whether it was your desire I should not consult with Peckham, you stated you wished me to bring all information to you personally. Peckham will probably remember that I walked with you aside after this interview closed and then left with him, then excused myself for not having called on him in reference to the Tweed matters. The following letter from Bryant addressed to me is I believe the first letter I received from him after his association with you:

NEW YORK, March 13.

My Dear Mr. Townsend: I have just got in on the night train, having left Albany at 4 o'clock. A deferred appointment with Fairchild was made for 7 o'clock last evening at his office with closed doors and lasted until half past twelve. I have no hope of presenting the interview in the scope of this epistle, but the result was most satisfactory. He accepted Tilden's invitation for himself and wife, and will be at Gramercy Park over Sunday next. He expects you to go to Fort Washington on Sunday with Tilden and for the liberation of our client immediately. The future conduct of the affair will be confined to O'Conor and the Attorney General. I shall see our happy client this morning and will see you further after my return from Sleepy Hollow. I entered fully upon the extensive insurance field with Fairchild, and have established in that connection a most important and valuable feature. Very truly, etc.

This letter, looked at in the light of subsequent events, it seems to me exhibits a degree of intimacy with Bryant which Tweed or I might be excused for relying on. A few days thereafter I received the following telegram from Bryant.

ALBANY, March 23.

The understanding is absolute, as I said, and all bright for a close next week. Home to-morrow.

BRYANT.

And on the same day Bryant telegraphed to Foster Dewey, formerly Tweed's secretary, as follows:

I shall close the first of next week. See that no word is said to a soul, until I get back to-morrow.

BRYANT.

That it might not become a matter for reporters to comment on, that Tweed was receiving telegrams and correspondence, the name of Luke Grant was selected as the one under which to address him, and on March 27th he received from Bryant the following:

BUCKINGHAM HOTEL.

To Luke Grant, 70 Ludlow Street Jail: Solid. See me at 11, the moneral later. G. UNION.

Sure enough on the same day you appeared at Ludlow street jail with your fakes achates, Bryant. This was an interview impressed by Bryant on two days, one that I was to know nothing about, and you never alluded to it until I subsequently expressed my astonishment to you that I was not informed of your intention. Then you pretended to know nothing about Bryant, and had thought he was Tweed's friend. This was a weak explanation. Tweed says that at this interview you showed no interest except on the subjects of Senator Woodin and a certain newspaper editor, about whom you were particularly eager. You carried off a certain statement which he made about them and have not returned it. Please do so. Tweed informed only to save himself and not ruin anybody else. It was not intended that his confession should be used for any political purpose, and he regretted you said you wished to make political capital out of it; but he was powerless. Next day you called again and took the papers, which you still have and Tweed wishes. The same day Bryant called and got a fuller sworn statement about Woodin and the editor and carried it away with many checks, saying they were for O'Conor and you. O'Conor denies he ever saw them or wanted them. Bryant has told me and Tweed that Tilden had them. Bryant again telegraphed Tweed next day, reassuringly. I got a note from Bryant, March 29th, at the Grand Union, which indicated that the papers had been taken to Albany by you, and you thought they were precious treasures and would be valuable. You assured me about April 2d that if Tweed made a full confession and restored all the property he had, he would be released, and not otherwise. John Kelly told me you made the same statement to him.

This, Townsend says, was the reason he believed the Attorney General was sincere. Bryant kept telegraphing favorably. Townsend elaborates on the difficulties of preparing an honest and truthful statement of things about which Tweed had forgotten much. After the statement was prepared Kelly read and considered it complete and satisfactory, and on the 16th of April he (Townsend) started with it to Albany and presented it, extracting from Fairchild a promise to return it to him without making or publishing any extracts from it whatever. Fairchild promised it should be sacred to all eyes but Samuel J. Tilden's and Fairchild's father, who were advisers. It was understood that if these pledges were broken Tweed should be release pledges were broken Tweed should be released.

Tweed, in his statement, starts out by saying all things in it are true so far as he knows, and what he has on information he believes. Tweed does not ask a nol pros of his case nor his release from liability, but asks a release from jail on his own recognizance, and that his property be taken in part payment of the judgment of $6,000,000, and in return for such treatment he will give full evidence, whenever the Attorney General may desire, relative to his connection with frauds of his own or others. Tweed offers

First—To give up his entire property, real and personal, in which he has been interested since 1870 and submit to an examination of his effects; to satisfy the attorney general that the schedule is honest and that he gives up all he will give it up by a full and general assignment.

Second—To furnish valuable testimony to New York City in certain specified suits, saving the city thereby nearly $2,000,000.

Third—To transfer to the attorney general all the checks he has which he mentions in the annexed schedule with his testimony regarding them and that of others.

Fourth—To give evidence for the people in all cases when the attorney general considers it valuable.

Fifth—To devote himself as assiduously to the carrying out of these promises as he has hitherto displayed in protecting his associates in crime.

On the 17th of April, said Townsend, one of Fairchild's politics and personal friends told him Tweed should make a statement regarding his connection with the two leading railroads in New York state, while he was Senator, and of corrupt dealings with two gentlemen whom he named—one a Democrat and one a Republican, both of high position. Tweed accordingly made a statement very damaging to the railroad corporations, but said he knew nothing derogatory of the two gentlemen named. Townsend suggests that as Fairchild's two advisers—Tilden and his father—had been counsel for these corporations, it was a false step to censure them. He asserts that doubtless Tweed, by his testimony, could save a large amount of money for the city. Tweed offered to prove

First—The composition, existence and origin of the ring; its personnel; division of spoils, manner of raising money for corrupt legislation; the implication of heads of departments here, giving checks and notes which he himself made in evidence.

Second—Working of the rings in former board of supervisors, with names of members and persons who presented fraudulent bills.

Third—He gave a large number of names of members of the Legislature with whom he had corrupt dealings while in the Senate.

Fourth—He mentioned the names of controlling lobbyists in the Senate.

Fifth—He detailed his knowledge of heavy suits against the city involving millions.

Sixth—He offered his own corroborative testimony against the New York Printing Co.

Seventh—He detailed the union between the ring and managers of a great Railroad Co. in the state.

Eighth—He showed how the corrupt combinations controlled city politics.

Ninth—As state senator he set forth the manner of obtaining corrupt legislation.

Tenth—He furnished a complete schedule of all his real estate, and gives other inducements in a financial way.

All these points were fortified by checks, etc.

It was at Fairchild's suggestion that Tweed refused to testify before the Woodin committee, on the ground that he might criminate himself. Thereupon a gentleman of distinguished position called on him (Townsend) saying Pelton, Tilden's nephew, wanted him to say that Tilden thought it would be better for Tweed to give his evidence to the committee, but this Townsend declined peremptorily to allow, as it appeared a political dodge.

Townsend here recites a conversation with Fairchild, in which they discussed the subject of Tweed's release, and in which Fairchild intimated he could be released in a few days. Thus the matter dragged along, Tweed growing worse with his malady daily, the doctors predicting danger to his life unless a decision be speedily given and suspense removed. Townsend entreated for a speedy decision as a matter of charity and humanity, but Fairchild was indifferent. Finally Fairchild informed him the whole matter had been sent to Peckham, in New York, for final advice. This violated the promise that Tweed should be released if the documents were shown to anybody outside.

Meantime the Sweeney trial was brought up, and Peckham expressed a desire to examine Tweed to see what evidence he could give in that case. Whitney also saw the statement without permission and perhaps others. These gentlemen have avowed that Tweed was a valuable witness, and Peckham has said openly that he thought Tweed would be used, but that it lay with the Attorney General to decide. Townsend then brands Fairchild as one who has the proud distinction of having saved from exposure thieves and rascals.

Tweed's Plan Spoiled.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Secretary of State Bigelow, to-day, in defense of Mr. Fairchild's action in the case of Tweed, said that while the statement was under consideration, information reached the Attorney General that Tweed has to his credit in Europe two million dollars, and that he is only waiting to secure his discharge to rejoin his confederates to embark with them in a large street railway speculation in Madrid.

WHAT OREGON PAPERS SAY.

Benton Democrat: What we want is to secure the election of some man from this valley whose interests are identical with ours. There are men in Benton and other adjoining counties as well qualified and able to represent the state in Congress as any from Portland.

Albany Democrat: The committee will not occupy much time in investigating the election of Senator Grover—as there is absolutely nothing to investigate; and will therefore have considerable leisure to utilize in recreation, travel and sight-seeing; and we should all see that they are afforded the fullest opportunity to gratify their desire in this line.

Eugene Guard: What is written is written, what is done is done. "There is no use crying over spilt milk," but Democracy has suffered enough at the hands of its nominal friends in Oregon. The rank and file are true, though perhaps slightly demoralized, which makes it absolutely necessary that their future leaders should possess their confidence in order to insure success.

Hillsboro Independent: The Astorian is mistaken when it thinks that Portland wants a certain railway communication with the East. It wants none whatever. Its high tariff jobbing ring have made what they possess solely from the isolation of Portland and Oregon, and railway communication with the Eastern states would break up the commercial "corner" they have localized from.

Corvallis Gazette: Oregon wants railroads; iron is now very low, cheaper perhaps than it will be again for years. We have no municipal debts, and for good prospective roads there is no difficulty in obtaining credit for long time, with quite reasonable interest. If we have to wait through the years till it is convenient to change the constitution till the golden opportunity will have passed, and the loss and detriment to the best interest of the state would be beyond calculation.

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

A Battle in Asia Minor.

LONDON, June 21.—We have only detailed information respecting the first conflict in the open field between the Turks and Russians in Armenia, when, at Mukhtar Pasha's orders, Mehemet Avanced through the passes from Araras valley and Pasim plain to meet the Russians. Mehemet entrenched at Zeidakan, Saidatcham, ten miles southwest of Toprak Kaleh, and in front of the above passes. His artillery was weak, infantry not over 8,000, and he had little cavalry. The Russian left, under Tergukassoff, had 10,000 infantry, plenty of cannon and effective cavalry. The Turks advanced June 15th, and an artillery duel ensued on the 16th. Six bodies of Russian infantry advanced steadily at 6, under cover of a terrible artillery fire, which the Turks returned. The Russians finally turned the Turkish flank, seized the commanding hill, threw up breast-works, and with four field guns ranged the entire extent of the Turkish line, causing them serious loss. The Turks stood the fire for twenty minutes. Mehemet then fell back, their ammunition failed, and they fled from the heights, followed by the Russian cavalry, with results not clearly known.

The Czar now has great concern for Montenegro, which need assistance.

Milan and the Czar.

VIENNA, June 2 .—Prince Milan has been very kindly received by the Czar, who listened with great attention to his account of the difficulties in which Servia is placed. The Czar assured Prince Milan that Servia might always reckon on his sympathies. The opinion of the Czar and his government is still that Servia should not stir. As for any positive prohibition, there can be no question of that, for in so doing Russia would take upon herself the responsibility she has always been careful to avoid.

An Utter Rout.

LONDON, June 21.—Contrary to Turkish reports of the junction of Suleiman Pasha and Ali Saib, a Cettinje correspondent says relative to the Turkish defeat near Spuz: The later accounts show there never was a worse panic or more disastrous rout known in the annals of war between Turkey and Montenegro. It was only the artillery of the forts that saved the Turkish army from complete destruction. The Turkish dead cannot be counted, because they lie along the plain nearly up to Spuz, and the artillery of the city prevents approach. Gen. Petrovich reports about 1,000 dead within the ground recovered by the Montenegrins. The spirits of the people are very high here. It is confidently believed Suleiman will be driven back to Nicsic.

Turks Report Themselves Victorious.

LONDON, June 22.—Turkish advices from Montenegro report that Suleiman Pasha has driven the insurgents from Nestrok and taken possession of the town. The Turks now occupy all strategic positions, and the campaign in Montenegro is considered over.

A dispatch from Erzeroum claims that the Russians have been defeated while attempting to pass Delibaba Gorge, sustaining severe loss.

General War Notes.

RUTSCHUK, June 21.—Cannonading continues here. The Russian battery has been dismounted at Olobsica.

VIENNA, June 22.—The statement that the occupation of Turkish territory by Austrian troops is imminent is denied in official circles. The mobilization of the army corps is also denied.

LONDON, June 2 .—A telegram from Cettinje admits that Suleiman Pasha occupied the strong position of Planilitza unopposed. Owing to the incapacity of Mirovics, the insurgent's leader, who, after he had decided no longer to oppose reoccupying Nicsic, remained inactive until the Turks entered that place, instead of providing for the defense of Planilitza.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 21.—The Senate has not agreed to reductions of estimates voted by the Chamber of Deputies. The government consequently referred the budget back to the Deputies.

The Chamber of Deputies has decided by a large majority that it is advisable to postpone for the present the question of the admission of Christians into the army, they continuing to pay exemption tax.

The Levant Herald has been suspended.

ORTROK, June 2 .—Five pashas, commanding 40 battalions, 22 guns and 1,000 cavalry, attacked the Montenegrin positions near Ostrok Sunday.

LONDON, June 21.—A Vienna correspondent denies the report of the moderation of Servia's militia.

BUCHAREST, June 21.—Sixty Turks landed near Kalarek Wednesday night, and were attacked by Russians and nearly all killed and wounded, after obstinate resistance. There has been a heavy cannonade across the lines between Widdin and Kalafat to-day.

BUCHAREST, June 21.—All military attaches except English have gone to the front.

ALEXANDRIA, June 21.—The English government has ordered Mackillof Pasha and other British officers in the Khedive's service to resign.

VIENNA, June 21.—On to-day's Bourse the official representative of the government denied the stories of Austrian military preparations.

LONDON, June 21.—The Standard in a leading editorial denies that the government intends to ask supplementary credit for the protection of British interests in the East.

The North German Gazette states positively that Germany has not departed from its attitude of reserve relative to the Eastern question.

British Troops for Egypt.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Tribune's London correspondent says: I have just heard important news—that a considerable British force is under orders to proceed to Egypt. This is in confirmation of a previous dispatch regarding the mobilization of the army, and first direct move England has made in the present European crisis. The cavalry for the Egyptian expedition will consist of three regiments—the 18th, 19th and 21st Hussars. Troops to land in Egypt will be replaced with infantry from Malta, consisting of the 42d Highland Light Infantry, 74th Highland and 101st Lenga, Fusileers. These corps will be replaced by the 2d Battalion Royal Welsh Fusileers, 60th and 102d regiments and 2d battalion Rifle Brigade, all from Gibraltar. These will remain at Malta until replaced by other troops of the line, not yet named, from England, and will then move on to Egypt. The Brigade Guards, consisting of the second battalion of Grenadiers, the second battalion of Coldstreams and the first battalion of Scotch Fusileers, will move direct from England to Egypt. Col. DeHorsie, of the Grenadier Guards, will command the brigade. In addition to the above force, 5,000 men, all natives, and all Moslems, will be sent to Egypt from India. This will make a total force, as nearly as possible, of 15,000 men. Probably no declaration will be made, but the troops will occupy Egypt ostensibly to protect the Suez canal. English statesmen favor a closer union of English interests there. Annexation of Egypt and a protectorate is now believed the only solution of the problem by which the Queen's vessels may pass unimpeded through the canal, and that no belligerent vessels shall be tolerated there. Actual proprietorship is the only means of securing this end. The time for half measures and expectant policy has passed.

Milan May Enter the Fray.

LONDON, June 22.—A Vienna dispatch says Prince Milan has not been positively forbidden to operate as he pleases on his own account. The possibility is of course by no means excluded that he may enter the party. It is certain the party who have representatives at Ploiesti have done all in their power to urge him to do so. The renewal of hostilities between Turkey and Servia would not have the same significance as the transfer of the Russo-Turkish war into Servia, and if it were as last year, waged far away from the Austrian frontier, Austria would not probably interfere.

THE GREAT ST. JOHNS FIRE.

Details of the Terrible Conflagration.

ST. JOHNS, June 21.—Yesterday was the most calamitous day ever known in the annals of St. Johns. Nothing could have come more suddenly than the fire which destroyed so many valuable lives, wasted property by millions, arrested many and varied forms of industry and spread not only desolation but terror and consternation all around. Public buildings, palaces of commerce, temples of religion, banks, palatial residences, newspaper and telegraph offices, school houses, a most every hing of which the citizens of St. Johns feel proud, were all in a few hours laid in ruins. The ones on hotels, churches, school houses, banks, etc., was made a thousand times more painful by the lamentable destruction of life accompanying it. The fire was discovered in a building owned by Mr. Fairweather, on the south of York's Point Slip, next to McLaughlin's boiler shop. To the latter buildings the flames had spread before the firemen had reached the scene. Engines arrived and did their best to stop the flames, but all efforts were in vain. Nothing could be done. The flames then spread to various buildings on Hayes' wharf, which were also quickly consumed, and the fire broke out with a roar into Smith street, carrying everything before it. From there the flame spread into Drury Lane and Mill street, following that into Dock street, taking both sides. Before this, however, the rear of the London House and adjacent buildings had been attacked. When it was seen the fire would inevitably sweep along Dock and Mill streets. Aid came from Portland in aid of the town engine and firemen. The timber and boxes on fire aided by the wind proved a combination too much for the gallant workers, and almost in despair they saw the flames advance upon them, not slowly, but with a rapid ty that appalled the stoutest hearts. The Carleton engine came in a ferry boat and lent its aid. One engine had been stationed at the corner of Mill and Union streets while the men, with branches, were down on Union street opposite Drury Lane. The buildings were a mass of flames at the end of Smith street and Drury Lane, and while the workers were mainly endeavoring to save the fire end there momentarily, a gale took the flames across Union street to the opposite houses and then they receded, but their touch had been fatal and in less than five minutes the buildings were doomed. Both sides of the street were soon in the grasp of the devouring element and the men were obliged to drop their branch pipes and run up the street, after which they dragged the hose after them. Another lot of men were working at the foot of Union street, and by placing boards in front of their faces, managed to battle with the flames until their clothing became singed. Proceeding along Smith street in a southerly direction, the fire soon reached Nelson street and then Robertson's place, then extended to Robertson's wharf and up South wharf. As it gained Wilson street on the south it met the flames coming up that street, and the combination made a terrific heat that could not be borne, allied with a strong wind from the northwest. The entire wharf was soon in a blaze. Half a dozen wood boats were at the head of Market slip, and at the end of the wharves about the same number of schooners. Before the fire had assumed a formidable shape on North wharf the men on the vessels began to pour water on the decks. The water was low just then, and something like this was necessary to extinguish the sparks that were continually showered upon them. Those at the head of the slip were in a quarter of an hour on fire in many places, and it was impossible for each outbreak to receive attention. Before the vessels had been well on fire the flames passed about their masts, which soon offered a stepping stone to the piles at South wharf. Not one of these, west of Ward street, was capable of withstanding the intense heat, and the spars all being of wood they went down as if felled by a hurricane. The schooners in front having been hauled to a place of safety, many of the occupants of stores were off helping their unfortunate brother merchants, and some arrived just in time to save their books. Others were just enabled to witness the destruction of all their stock. Some of the embers lodged in the people of Trinity church, Germain street, and with nothing to save it, for the fire was so high as to be almost beyond reach and the flames were left to pursue their own way. As the news spread that some wooden houses in Moreheid street, as well as others on Duke street near Victoria Hotel, were on fire, housewards were alarmed, as it was soon seen that the fire was spreading north, south, east and west to Germain, Charlotte, Duke and Horsefield streets; not an engine to be had and everything going down before the unrelenting fire. A building on Charlotte street had hardly become a prey to the flames when others on the other side followed. In half an hour all but the Germain street side of the square was in ashes. The Victoria Hotel and St. Andrew's Church were in great danger, and the hotel guests and employes began to make preparations for leaving. In a majority of cases the inmates had to leave with scanty wearables. About the same time St. Andrew's Church took fire and was speedily consumed. Adjoining the church a two story brick building, occupied as a tailor shop in the lower story and by Beacon, Pioneer and Siloam, lodges of Odd Fellows, as well as Mellnet's Encampment of that order on the upper floors. Some of the members managed to get in the building and save most of the regalia and paraphernalia prior to its destruction. The buildings at the southern corner of Duck and Union streets, and on opposite corner caught almost simultaneously. To say the fire raged fiercely here would but too faintly describe the terrible manner in which it kept on, unheeding the streams of water directed upon it. The engine was obliged to shift its position from this quarter, the heat being most terrific. There was danger, too, of the hose being burned, and of all things the preservation of the hose was most essential. The engine was taken down Duke street, but the fire kept a rapid pursuit. It also spread along the western part of Mill street, crossing over to the opposite side and igniting Rankins & Son's biscuit manufactory. Then it followed toward North street from South wharf. The flames entered into Ward and extended to Peters' wharf in remarkably short time, carrying everything before it; then proceeded to Water street, thence soon made its way to the southern part of Market square, making a jump up to Prince William street. At this stage a wooden house on Canterbury street took flames and Church street buildings were soon imperiled. Then the flames advanced to Princess and King streets and buildings on Germain in front of Trin

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The excellence of the public schools of our city is at once a measure and a proof of the public intelligence. In the creation and maintenance of these schools may be seen a reflection of the ideas of our people as to public education and the duty of providing it. Such schools do not grow up by any system of chance, or by any favor of fortune. They are a product of a large and sound idea, working with a steady and patient regard to an end to be achieved. In excellence and thoroughness of work in this direction the public schools of Portland are not behind those of any city. It has always been gratifying that no pressure of hard times has been permitted to diminish the public liberality in regard to our city schools, or to reduce the efficiency of their management. This system of public instruction, provided at the public expense, is an established institution, an ornament of our city and a conservator of its morals, opening a way to the education of the whole body of our children and youth, and supplying to very many inducement and opportunity without which even the rudiments of learning would be neglected. Under our system as organized and conducted, children are taken from their alphabets and carried to a high degree of proficiency in common school studies, or to a very forward stage of preparation for admission to college, if they desire to enter a collegiate course. The school year now just closed, has been unusually successful. All departments have been directed with an intelligence that comprehends the requirements of educational work.

Not only are our public schools commendable for their success in establishing a broad basis of instruction in the elements of learning, but they are equally to be praised for the enforcement of discipline and order. Proper subordination and methods of promptness and regularity are among the most valuable of lessons. A judicious hand represses obstinacy and contention, and conscientious watchfulness cultivates principles of sincerity. If this be high praise it is not undeserved. Every citizen should pay a tribute of commendation to public schools which so greatly honor and benefit a community.

Discoursing of education Montaigne says: "Bees cull their several sweets from this flower and that blossom, here and there where they find them, but themselves after make the honey which is all and purely their own, and no longer thyme and marjoram; so the several fragments the pupil borrows from others he will transform and blend together to compile a work that shall be absolutely his own; that is to say, his judgment, which his instruction, labor and study should alone tend to form. He is not obliged to discover whence he had his materials, but only to produce what he has done with them." Here is a statement of the real objects of instruction. These objects are as well understood and as faithfully pursued in the public schools of Portland as in any of the higher and more pretentious institutions of learning among us.

IMPROVED PUBLIC CREDIT.

The disappointments and losses of general speculation have attracted attention anew to the desirability of national bonds for purposes of investment, and the result is a reduction of the interest rate on large classes of these securities. A few years ago in the haste of men to get great gains, government bonds were much neglected. Capital sought investments that offered extravagant profits through the chances of speculation. It tried mining property, city real estate, new railroads and new lands. A five per cent. government loan was considered altogether too slow a return for money. Speculative enterprise promised far more. But the collapse of all this brought heavy losses and useful lessons. Government five per cents which could not then be sold except at discounts, bring now 110 or more, and the four and a-half per cents are considerably better than gold. And recently it was announced that a contract had been made by the treasury to sell to a syndicate during July and August twenty-five millions of four per cent. bonds, to run thirty years. The syndicate takes them at par in gold. The necessary amount of six per cents will be called in before the bonds bearing the lower rate of interest are issued.

Of the four and a half per cents. authorized by law, there were still one hundred and twenty-five millions untaken. The old syndicate had the right to subscribe these at any time before June 30, provided the secretary should not sooner withdraw them. It was not supposed, however, that he would do this. Nevertheless he did withdraw them, except twenty-five millions, which the syndicate thereupon took, and with them twenty-five millions of four per cents. This is the most favorable transaction for the government that has ever been conducted. It is a rate which shows the credit of our government to be as good as that of England, and it is believed that the transaction is initiative to funding the whole national debt, in good time, at this favorable rate. Such a consummation would reduce the interest charge by the great sum of twenty or thirty million dollars a year.

All the four and a half per cents. are now sold, and are quoted in New York papers of the 12th at two and a quarter to two and three-eighths more than gold. The World says the four per cents now come to the front and offer themselves to the investors as the final bond of the United States. "The new loan," says the same journal, "administered in the spirit in which it is opened, leads the way to the resumption of specie payments and the unification of the public debt." It is thus that honest and sound administration of the finances, as against theories of inflation and paper money, improve the national credit and relieve the public burdens.

INVESTIGATION.

In an article published a few days ago on payments from the state treasury not authorized by law we remarked that it seemed to be the duty of the prosecuting attorney of the third district to bring suits for recovery of the money which has been paid for the services of a clerk to the superintendent of the penitentiary, and for other unauthorized purposes. Our attention has since been called to the statute (code, page 402, section 15,) defining the duties of the secretary of state, which provides that this officer "shall superintend the fiscal affairs of the state and manage the same in the manner prescribed by law;" and further, that it is his duty "to direct and superintend the collection of moneys due to the state," and "to require every person who shall have received any money, property or goods belonging to the state and shall not have accounted therefor, to settle such accounts and return such property or goods," etc. It is therefore suggested that neither the district attorney nor any other person could bring suit to recover for the state any money paid however illegally, for the hire of a clerk to the superintendent of the penitentiary, unless directed to do so by the secretary of state, who has by law the superintendence of such matters. The question is, therefore, can the prosecuting attorney do anything about it?

It is not alone that the secretary omits to take action to enforce the return of this money; the graver objection is that he continues, we are assured, to draw warrants for payments which no law authorizes. The omission might perhaps be overlooked for the present; the commission becomes a gross breach of duty which every repetition aggravates. One thing the district attorney may clearly do. He may cause inquiry to be made before a grand jury to ascertain if there be any violation of law, or official delinquency; and in case such be found the proceeding is then a plain one, as may be seen by section nineteen of the seventh article of the constitution.

In this matter we have no intent or desire to misrepresent any one. If, however, there be any neglect of duty or violation of law, entailing loss on the public treasury, it is the right of the people to know it. From several sources we hear that the unauthorized payments are continued. Shall the matter be investigated? It can be done, undoubtedly, in the manner indicated.

Last October General Stone, of Mississippi, wrote a letter to Attorney-General Taft at Washington, in which reply was made to a speech Taft had delivered at Cincinnati, in the course of which reference was made to Mississippi affairs. Stone said: "I am more than willing, and have been able, to execute the laws in Mississippi and conserve the public peace. The perpetrators of wrongs are responsible to the state authorities, and I am able to bring all such to justice, and am determined to do so." These were fine promises. But no one has yet even been arrested for the terrible murders in Kemper county.

It was Ben Bill, of Georgia, who, in a recent speech, insisted on a new constitution for that state, because the present one "brands the war as a rebellion, this insulting the living and dishonoring the patriotic dead." It is galling tyranny, to live under a constitution that calls a rebellion a rebellion.

BRIEF NOTES.

Ladies' Unitarian picnic.

Public schools closed.

Still cool and pleasant.

"Overland Route" Monday.

Society elections next week.

Gov. Chadwick is in the city.

Last night of "Tour of the World."

Ain't the boys and girls glad? Vacation.

The recent rain will do a "power of good" to the crops.

Morton and his party will be here in a few days.

This time last year, we were hunting hay by the ground.

Big attractions at the White House this afternoon.

The Indian difficulty is the absorbing topic of the hour.

Fifty miles in two hours is what Smith is going to try to make.

What is the latest from the front?" is the all-absorbing question now.

Small package picked up on the street. Owner will find it at this office.

Willamette's house is draped in mourning for the late Chas. V. Wilkes.

Boys are the first to go in that direction. Those that did not are otherwise.

That heathen Chinee Ong Young got Bush's boarding house for one year.

The public schools are closing for new fields, and the school children are happy.

The funeral of Alexander Collier, the unfortunate suicide, took place yesterday afternoon.

Jo Chas. McGinn, the baker, is at St. Vincent's hospital, and is considered in a critical condition.

The queer craft Hydra succeeds in collecting sufficient freights to make it pay by sailing in Lewis river.

Hon. W. Lair Hill of Portland, will deliver an address before the Adelphian Literary Society of the Agricultural College, Corvallis, Monday, June 25th.

Will Charles Yocum, son of the late L. Yocum, call and see Mr. Joseph Buchtel. A young man may learn something to his advantage.

A handsome chain railing around the lot which surrounds the custom house would be a great improvement over the temporary "sticks" that are used for the purpose.

We will not ride against Mr. Smith this time. We started in to ride on this occasion the other day, and rode about ten blocks. Since then the saddle has been too sore to admit of our riding "some more."

In the case of Wm. Barr vs. C. S. Silver & J. H. Mitchell in the state circuit court, the jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount claimed, $7,690. The jury was out 16 hours.

An individual evidently of a nervous temperament called out in audible tones to Booth, in the play last evening, to "spit it out," when Booth was trying to pop the question to Nydia. The actors, as well as the audience, enjoyed it.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

At the Unitarian church, T. L. Eliot will preach at 11 A. M. Mr. Galvin will preach in the evening at 8:15. All are cordially invited.

Rev. A. Jones, of Salem, will preach in the First Baptist church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock and the Rev. Mr. Price, of California, will preach in the evening at a quarter to 8 o'clock. Sabbath school at 12:30 P. M.

To-morrow being St. John's Day, divine service will be held at St Stephen's chapel, corner of Main and Fourth streets, at 11 o'clock, where the Chaplain will deliver a sermon on the life and character of St. John the Baptist. There will also be service at 3:30 P. M. In the evening at 7 o'clock service will be held in St. Matthew's mission chapel, at the south end of the street railroad.

Taylor-street M. E. Church.—Preaching to-morrow morning and evening by the pastor, C. V. Anthony. Subject in the morning, "Christian Contentment." At night, "Science and Revelation, or What is Made and What Made it." Prayer meeting at 6:30 P. M. and also on Thursday evening. Evening services begin at 7:30 o'clock. All are invited.

AMUSEMENTS.

LAST NIGHT.—There appears to be no diminution of interest in the very attractive sensational play of "Tour of the World in 80 Days," now being performed at the New Market Theater. Last evening another crowded audience greeted the fifth presentation of this play. This play has met with a degree of success far exceeding the most sanguine anticipations of the management. With the audience this afternoon and the performance this evening, the "Tour of the World in 80 Days" will end, and we will take the "Overland Route" next week.

PORTLAND HIGH SCHOOL.

GRADUATING EXERCISES—BENEFIT OF THE SCHOOL LIBRARY—CONFERRING OF DIPLOMAS—HOME TALENT—AN IMMENSE AUDIENCE IN ATTENDANCE.

Never have we seen Masonic Hall so completely filled as it was last evening on the occasion of the annual exhibition given by the pupils of the public schools for the benefit of the library and the graduating exercises of the Portland high school. Every seat was filled long before the hour announced for the exercises to begin, and chairs and benches were brought in until the aisles were filled, and even then many were compelled to remain standing the entire evening. The teachers and pupils crowded the dressing rooms on either side the stage, and in fact the house was filled to its utmost capacity, but notwithstanding its crowded condition the audience remained quiet and apparently deeply interested in the exercises. The first piece on the somewhat lengthy programme was a vocal quartette entitled "The Sailor Lad," admirably rendered by the ever popular Amphion Club. This was followed by an essay by Miss Amy C. Adams on "The Use and Abuse of Language," which was appreciated by those who were near enough the essayist to hear it, evincing deep thought and a thorough appreciation of the subject matter in hand. The declamation, "What a Little Boy Has," by Master Felix Friedlander, was a very creditable rendition for a six year old boy, and his effort was loudly applauded. Miss Ollie Friedner then favored the audience with the recitation of that touching little poem, "Papa's Letter with God," in a manner that gave universal satisfaction. Miss Grace DeLin followed with a German essay, "Die Smobel," which no doubt possessed great merit, but was of course unintelligible to the majority of her hearers. She read it however very freely and fluently, and in a plain and distinct tone of voice. An instrumental duet "Qui Vive Galop," by Miss Katie Dwyer and Miss Abbie Atwood, was very nicely executed. "The Old Deacon's Lament," a declamation by James Fryer, was quite amusing and caused a general laugh. Master Harold Pilkington recited "The Public School Song" in a very acceptable manner. Perry Barker's essay on "Intemperance" was a vivid picture of its horrors and an earnest appeal to all to avoid it and strive to further the cause of total prohibition. Miss Gertie Gallick recited that beautiful poem, "How Jo Saved St. Michael," and in her hands it proved one of the rarest gems of the evening. Miss Stella E. Taylor read a well composed essay on "Possibilities," picturing to her classmates the prizes within their grasp, wherein fame and fortune might be won if earnestly and studiously sought after. Miss Chesten Dolph inquired of the audience in poetry, "Who can tell what the baby thinks?" The declamation was very clever considering his age. Chas. A. Ritter, a colored pupil, then read a French essay on "L' Astronomie Primitif." Our reporter's French was sadly neglected during his college career, and he could not appreciate it as he otherwise would. We could but notice, however, that he read it off with apparent ease and freedom, and the production was undoubtedly very creditable. Miss Louisa Aldrich recited a poem entitled "School Statistics," which was favorably received by the audience. A vocal duet by Misses Helen Cason and A. C. Abbott was very fine, both ladies having sweet voices, which are well trained. Wm. C. Jenne then read a lengthy essay on "The Mind." It was deep in thought and sentiment, but he lacked elocutionary powers. Miss Jennie A. Young's recitation, "Death Doomed" was something unusually fine, and the little lady was enthusiastically applauded. Gaines M. Adams' essay on "Civilization, Past and Present" was very fair, containing some sarcastic allusions, painfully plain. The recitation "Which Shall it Be," by Miss Josie Sullivan was a very clever rendition throughout. Miss Lutt Wakefield's rendition of that exciting poem descriptive of "The Bursting Prairie" was certainly very fine and vividly portrayed. This was followed by a recitation descriptive of the "Bursting of the Williamsburg Dam" by Miss Eugenie S. Combs which was admirably delivered. Miss Dora McCord then recited "The Creed of the Bells" in which she imitated the ringing tones of the various church bells in a country village. The effort was warmly applauded. The graduating class then took seats upon the stage, and Charles B. Cardinell delivered the oration and valedictory address, his subject being "Life a Drama." In its recital he alluded briefly to their school life and the commencement of life's earnest duties, and paid a handsome tribute of praise to their patient and faithful teachers, and then turning to his classmates, reminded them of the stern realities of life, urging upon them the necessity of earnest toil. It was a fine effort throughout, and feelingly and touchingly delivered. Then followed the presentation of the diplomas by Hon. J. J. Browne, county school superintendent, who preluded it with a brief address, embodying much kindly advice and friendly admonitions, after which he formally presented each of the following graduates with their hard-earned diplomas: Charles B. Cardinell, Wm. G. Fenne, Perry M Barker, Charles A. Ritter, Gaines M. Adams, Stella E. Taylor, Grace W. DeLin, Eugenia S. Combs and Amy C. Adams. The exercises closed with a quartette by the Amphion Club, and all went home well pleased with the events of the evening. We congratulate the teachers and pupils alike on the success of the entertainment, and trust it has proved a financial success as well.

PICNICS.

We are requested to say that the picnic of the Sabbath school of the First Presbyterian church, appointed for to-day, will be postponed unless the weather shall prove pleasant and inviting.

UNITARIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.—The steamer City of Salem is chartered by the Unitarian Sunday School for their special service to-day, and will leave Pacific wharf at 8:30 A. M., and again at 2:30 P. M., for Ross' Island, taking the entire party in the afternoon to Oregon City falls. This steamer will take no parties to the race course at either of the above named hours.

The postponed picnic of the St. Andrew's Society has now been fixed to take place on the 4th of July, at McMillan's grounds, near Oswego. The steamer City of Salem has been chartered for the day, and will make two trips to the grounds—the first at 8:30 A. M. and the second at 1 P. M.—from the Pacific wharf. In order also to accommodate pleasure seekers at Oregon City, on that day, who may wish to join in the picnic or come to Port and, it has been arranged that the steamer will make an extra trip. After landing the excursionists at the picnic grounds, she will proceed to Oregon City, leaving there about 10:30, returning from Portland in the evening at 6, calling at the picnic grounds going and coming. A band of music will accompany the excursionists, and a good programme of dancing, races and Highland games has been prepared. Altogether this will be one of the most enjoyable picnics of the season. Extra care will be taken that none but respectable citizens will be present, and no intoxicating liquor will be sold on the ground. Tickets, $1 each; children between 6 and 12, 50 cents, and all under 6 free.

REPORT OF GRAND JURORS.

In the circuit court of the State of Oregon for Multnomah. In the matter of the report of the grand jury for the June term, A. D. 1877.

To Hon. E. D. Shattuck, Judge of the above entitled court: We, the grand jury for the June term, would respectfully report:

That we have examined and considered the matters that came before us of a criminal nature, and then visited and examined the county jail under the jailer, Eli Morrill.

The jail is in as good condition as it can be kept without some repair or improvement. It needs plastering in the jailor's room, and should be better ventilated, as it is under ground and too damp for the health of the prisoners, and we recommend that the earth against the walls be removed at least four feet.

We also visited the city jail and found it in good condition.

Also the insane asylum at East Portland under the management of Dr. J. C. Hawthorne, and found it as well kept as it could be. We found under treatment patients as follows: males 167, females 60, total 227.

We visited the poor farm of this county under charge of Mr. Cleghorn. There are at present six persons kept there at the county's charge. The farm and buildings are kept neat, clean and in good order. As far as we could judge from a casual examination the manner in which the poor farm is conducted is satisfactory.

THE IDAHO INDIAN WAR.

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

Latest from the Front—Death of Lew Day from Wounds—Other Murders Reported on Salmon—Settlers Forted up on Slate Creek.

Volunteers but no Arms—Arrival of Soldiers at Lewiston.

From the Teller Extra.

LEWISTON, Thursday morning, 8 o'clock, June 22.—Pike Davenport, John Havard and two other men arrived from Mt. Idaho last night. They report that Mrs. Manuel and child, and George Woodard, had been murdered on Salmon river. Most of the remaining families are forted up at Slate creek, and have a defense of about 40 able-bodied citizens. Chapman with 35 volunteers were to proceed from their defenses at Mt. Idaho to reconnoiter the position of the Indians, who are supposed to be somewhere in the direction of Salmon river.

In the fight Charles Horton of the volunteers was killed. One thousand cartridges sent from here had safely arrived at Mt. Idaho. The New Tenino arrived this morning with 107 troops. Dr. Morris came up on her and proceeded at once with Pike Davenport to Mt. Idaho. No extra arms came up on the boat. About 50 volunteers have arrived here from Columbia county, but few of them have suitable arms, but are awaiting them from below. Lew Day has died of his wounds.

The following dispatch was received at military headquarters yesterday morning from Gen. O. O. Howard:

FORT LAPWAI, I.T., June 20—9:25 P.M.

A message received from Col. Perry makes the loss 53, meaning exclusive of Lieut. Theller, whom Capt. Trimble placed, wounded, upon his horse. Theller was afterwards killed. The Florence people reported to having effectually blocked the Indian trail toward Little Salmon and Weiser. Reinforcements leave here Friday morning without fail. It is the worst possible country for us for Indian fighting. Say to our friends, be patient and wait results. Perry, Trimble and Parnell are well.

The following troops were expected to arrive at Lewiston yesterday, and proceed at once to the front: Col. Whipple, with Companies L and E of the cavalry and a couple of Gatlin guns; Company E, fourth artillery, Capt. Miller; Company E, twenty-first infantry, Capt. Miles; Company H, twenty-first infantry; Lieut. Haughey; Company D, twenty-first infantry, Capt. Pollock, and Company B, twenty-first infantry, Capt. Joslyn. The entire force up there at the present time numbers about 300, which with the troops that left here Thursday morning and who will probably arrive there erly this morning, will increase the number to about 475. With this force active service will be at once commenced, and during the ensuing week we may anticipate some exciting news.

Thursday, Gov. S. F. Chadwick received a dispatch from the county judge of Union county, requesting him to forward with all possible speed 5,000 United States musket cartridges and 5,000 needle-gun cartridges. On receipt of the telegram, Gen. Mart. V. Brown, by order of Gov. Chadwick, forwarded by morning's boat 3,000 rounds of cartridges—2,000 musket and 1,000 needle gun cartridges, which go to Judge Brainard, of Union county, to protect settlers exposed to the threatened outbreak of Wallowa Indians. Gen. Brown has also made a requisition on the Secretary of War, through an order from the Governor, for 10,000 rounds of ammunition from Vancouver. The ammunition spoken of was forwarded by the O. S. N. Co. free of charge. There being no funds provided by the state to pay for arms and ammunition, Mr. S. G. Reed gave orders at once to forward the whole lot without charge.

The following dispatch was received yesterday from Salem:

In reply to Gov. Chadwick's request for arms and ammunition, the Secretary of War, McCrary, telegraphs to Gen. McDowell at San Francisco to-day, as follows: "The Governor of Oregon asks for arms and ammunition for volunteers. You will direct them to be furnished upon the Governor's requisition, as provided by joint resolution of July 18, 1876, and March 3, 1877."

The steamer Almota left Celilo Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock, having on board the troops and munitions which left here the same morning.

Mr. John Jack, who is now playing at Astoria, proposes to donate the entire proceeds of the matinee performance to be given at his theater this (Saturday) afternoon, which are to be forwarded to Lewiston, Idaho, to increase the fund for purchase of arms, ammunition and supplies to protect our fellow citizens there against Indian attack. The Mayor of Astoria appointed the following gentlemen to compose the committee who are to receive and forward the receipts to Lewiston: O. F. Bell, I. W. Case and C. A. McGuire.

The staff of Gen. M. V. Brown will be composed as follows, should the services of the state militia be required: E. Cahalin, Major and Chief of Staff; Majors Herren and Parker A. A. Generals; John M. Gearin Captain and Aid-de-Camp, and Harry McCormick has also been appointed Aid-de-Camp with the rank of Captain and will soon receive his commission.

Further Details. Names of Refugees fortified on Slate Creek. Indians Threaten their Fort and the Lives of the Men.

Volunteers from Boise, Idaho City and other towns. More arms wanted.

Piutes and Shoshones Encamped near Silver City, but declare they are Peaceable.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—A Winnemucca press dispatch says Gov. Brayman of Idaho received a dispatch from Winnemucca, chief of the Piutes, now at Silver City, in which the chief assures the Governor he has no intention of breaking the peace with the whites; that if an Indian outbreak occurs he will remain friendly, but if he wants to fight he will give fair warning.

A press dispatch from Boise City says: By the arrival here last night, the previous reports of the Indian outbreak near Salmon river are substantially confirmed. The scene of the first massacre is on Salmon river and tributaries of that stream coming in from the northern side, draining Camas prairie and the neighboring mountains. The settlement called Camas prairie covers foot hills to the north of Florence mountain, extending several miles northward into the plains which lie between Florence mountain and the breaking down of the table land called Craig's mountain. Mount Idaho is about the center of the range of settlements on Camas prairie, situated at the foot of Florence mountain, sixty-five miles from Lewiston, Idaho. The settlements on Salmon river and its tributaries lie to the south and southwest of Mount Idaho, at a distance from 15 to 30 miles. The Indians did not kill the women or children, but allowed them to be taken under escort of a friendly squaw to Slate creek, which had thus far been unmolested. At Slate creek the whites have fortified themselves in a stockade fort, into which has been received the wives and children of the murdered men, together with the families of the men who had escaped massacre. Gathered in this place are the following persons: Mrs. Henry Elfers and two children, whose husband was murdered at John Day's creek; Mr. Sherwood wife and grown daughter; Hiram Tilman, wife and several children; Mrs. Wm. Osborne and five children, whose husband was murdered at Harry Mason's, on Salmon river; sister of Harry Mason, murdered in his home; Mrs. H. C. Brown, husband murdered at his store on Salmon river; Mrs. J. Manuel and two children, husband murdered at White Bird postoffice; John Woods, Chas. Ford's wife and 4 children, Mr. Cohen, wife and several children, Wm. Rhett, wife and several children. These few men are thus shut up in the midst of hostile Indians without adequate means of defense and without aid will certainly be overpowered and murdered, as the Indians declare their determination to take the fort and murder the men. It cannot be hoped the Indians will again spare the women and children after the losses they must sustain in capturing the fort, as the men will fight to the last. Our informant says he is reliably informed the Indians did not fire a single building or destroy any property, but cleaned the country of stock which they have driven to the south side of Salmon river. They seem to hope they will ultimately be the undisturbed proprietors of all the property the whites are now compelled to abandon. They think not without reason that before the country can be regained from them an army must be created and a long and doubtful campaign passed through. The Indians have now their principal camp and headquarters on Salmon river just below the mouth of a small stream called Skookum Chuck, while the stock is gathered and pastured on an extensive triangular shaped region formed by the Snake and Salmon rivers and the high mountain range lying about the forks of Payette and Weiser rivers. Here there is abundant pasturage for summer and winter, and here they will doubtless make their final stand.

In contradiction to previous reports that the troops behaved badly, our informant says, by citizens who were in the fight he is assured the troops, though they allowed themselves to be decoyed into ambush, displayed throughout the action the utmost gallantry, and fought like tigers. About twenty-five or thirty soldiers were killed in about the same number of minutes.

The situation in Northern Idaho far exceeds in gravity any Indian outbreak of our day, and will tax the best resources of the government and of the people immediately interested to subdue the Indians and restore peace to the country. The Indians know the army on this coast is a skeleton and the people helpless from a want of arms.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—A press dispatch from Boise City this evening says twenty-five armed volunteers under command of Capt. Orlando Robbins, an experienced Indian fighter, will start for Northern Idaho, where the settlements are threatened by Indians, with fifty stand of arms for settlers. A few hundred stand of arms belonging to the territory are at the disposal of the Governor, but so many exposed settlements are asking arms and ammunition the supply is likely to be soon exhausted. Volunteer companies are being constantly organized in the various settlements. In Idaho City a company of sixty men was recently formed, but none of these companies are able to move until provided with arms from ordnance stores here.

SILVER CITY, Idaho, June 22.—No trouble is expected with the Indians in this section of Idaho, although the citizens have prepared themselves for any emergency, being now pretty well supplied with arms, ammunition, etc. Many of the old Idaho pioneers reside here and a majority of them have no especial love for redskins of any description, but there will be no trouble unless the Indians are the aggressors. There are over one hundred Piutes encamped fifty miles from here in the vicinity of Mahogany Mountain. Some 300 Shoshones are in camp about sixty miles from here on the road to Cortucopia. They claim to be peacefully inclined and profess to have no sympathy with warring Nez Perces. The Piutes are anxious to secure a reservation in Owyhee.

CARD OF THANKS.

The five hundred "Centennial Badges," furnished by L. C. Henrichsen, Esq., free of charge, and given yesterday to the pupils of the public schools of this city, gladdened many little hearts. Principals, teachers and especially the children hereby tender sincere thanks to Mr. Henrichsen for his generosity, kind consideration and thoughtfulness of the little ones at that very opportune time—the closing of the schools. The spirit and the motive are appreciated. Remembering the children and teaching them to love their country, which, next to the worship of God, is the grandest emotion of the human heart.

SAVE YOUR EYES.—Dr. Sassarath, the eminent French oculist, who is now sojourning in our city, will positively take his departure next Monday afternoon. During his very short stay here Dr Sassarath has treated most successfully over 200 cases, many of which embrace the most prominent citizens of Portland—ladies and gentlemen. Not a single person treated by him has returned dissatisfied with the skill and knowledge he has displayed. Several persons who have suffered for years with defective eyes, unable to obtain relief, have procured such treatment and glasses as to be able to read without difficulty. At the urgent solicitation of many citizens, Dr. S. has been induced to prolong his stay until Monday. All who have visited him become the highest praise, and declare his skill is truly wonderful. Those whose eyes require attention should call at once, as his stay is brief. The writer knows whereof he speaks, having derived much comfort from the use of his glasses. He can be found at his room, No. 1, St. Charles hotel, from 9:30 A. M. to 5 P. M.

RADICAL CURE.
For CATARRH.

INSTANTLY relieves and permanently cures this loathsome disease in all its varying stages. It possesses the soothing and healing properties of plants, herbs and barks in their essential form, free from every fibrous contamination, and in this respect differs from every other known remedy. In one short year it has found its way from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and wherever known has become the standard remedy for the treatment of Catarrh. The proprietors have been united upon by gentlemen of national reputation who have been cured by this remedy, and who have, at considerable expense, caused personal trouble, spread the good news throughout the circles in which they move. When you hear a wealthy gentleman of intelligence and refinement say "I owe my life to Sanford's Radical Cure," you may feel assured that it is an article of great value and worthy to be classed among the standard medical specifics of the day.

IMPORTANT LETTER
From a Distinguished Physician.

NO single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind, one or more and sometimes all yield to its destructive influences. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored because but little understood by physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won my hearty approval. I believe it likely to succeed when all the usual remedies fail, because it strikes at the root of the disease, viz: the acidified blood which breaks the unoxidized membrane by direct application to the nasal passages. Its action is based on certain fixed rules, and unless the vital forces are too far exhausted, must, in the great majority of cases, effect a cure. GEO. BEARD, M. D.
Nobscott Block, So. Framingham, Oct. 1, 1874

CATARRH.
And Deafness Cured.

Gentlemen—My wife has been troubled with Catarrh for years, and has tried three or four remedies without any benefit. She has also been partially deaf in one ear over twelve years. Since she has been using SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE her troubles have been growing rapidly better. At times she can hear as well as ever, and I am confident that a persistent use of the remedy will result in a permanent restoration of her hearing. There are several others here who are using the RADICAL CURE successfully, and I anticipate for it a large sale as a consequence of the never failing relief and cure afforded by its use. Respectfully yours,

A. W. DAVIDSON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Claude Roben, a Frenchman, residing at 825 Dupont street, was discovered dead in his bed this evening, having taken strychnine. He has been employed as a dishwasher in a restaurant, but was lately out of work and drinking heavily, and threatened suicide yesterday.

Political.

At a meeting of the opposition Democratic county committee this evening, resolution of the state committee asking harmony between the two wings of the party in the city was presented, but the committee declined to receive it on the ground that it was improper y addressed to the chairman as a private individual, and not in his official capacity. No particular objection was offered to the resolution in substance.

Pinchback Interviewed.

Pinchback, of Louisiana, arrived this evening in company with Senator Bruce, of Mississippi. Ex-Secretary Chandler laid over at Truckee. Pinchback, in an interview with a Call reporter this evening, gave as his opinion that Hayes' policy in Louisiana had had a good effect and had served to benefit both white and colored. As to the intrinsic justice of his action in the case of South Carolina and Louisiana, he said the colored population of the latter state looked upon it with disfavor, believing that Packard had the same right to the office as the President himself, and he was looking with great interest to the action of the colored voters in Ohio at the coming election, believing they would unmistakably indicate their opposition to the course which they could only construe as an outrage upon the rights of their brethren in Louisiana. He said there was no hope of the resurrection of the Packard power in Louisiana, and that it had never had any strength or ability to make itself respected outside of New Orleans and a few neighboring parishes.

NEVADA.

Mining Tax Suits.

VIRGINIA, June 21.—Complaints were yesterday filed in the office of the District Court for the ten per cent. penalty for tax due from the delinquent Con. Virginia and California mines for the last six months of 1876. The total amount claimed in the papers is $49,-618 35. In a former judgment confessed by the companies this amount was included. The judgment was satisfied of record and the county commissioners stipulated not to enforce the payment of this penalty until some time in 1877. This stipulation, however, is not considered binding by those best posted in the law bearing on the case.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Alaska News Items.

VICTORIA, June 21.—The steamship California arrived at Port Townsend June 18th, direct from Alaska, having on board all the government officers and troops, and the remainder of the stores, arms, ordnance, etc. The post at Sitka was abandoned on the 14th of June. The citizens of that place were apprehensive of immediate trouble with the Indians. They are left without any protection and no law of any kind, and are anxiously looking forward to the arrival of a revenue cutter or gunboat. The women and children are especially excited and alarmed. Meetings were to be held for the purpose of immediate organization, and to appoint guardsmen at night to prevent the Indians from entering the town. The commanding officer before departure at the request of the citizens, removed the Indians as usual outside the fences and barricades; and it is the intention to adhere to this rule of keeping them out of the town at night.

The quartz mines are looking well, and the ledge in the Stuart tunnel widens as they go in. This tunnel is now in twenty-eight feet, and they have seven feet of good clear quartz.

At Fort Wrangel there is much depression. There is no one left to settle disputes and live times are expected this winter.

The steamer carried off a slave girl belonging to one of the Indian chiefs. This chief resorted to every means save violence, to detain his property, and only consented to leave the ship when the planks were drawn in.

Reports from the Cassiar mines are very favorable. Dease creek is paying handsomely; McDame's creek is looking splendidly.

Met the Grappler near Alert Bay on the 17th of June.

The California brought down $20,000 treasure.

CANADA.

The Oka Indian Troubles.

MONTREAL, June 22.—The Oka Indians have returned to Oka, having been assured by Col. Amyst that they would not be arrested.

FROM SODA SPRINGS.

"Comparison," writing from Soda Springs under date of June 17th, sends the following:

Mr. Holsapple of Portland, has rented the hotel, stable, etc., and already quite a crowd throngs the parlors of his well kept house.

Crops are looking splendid in this vicinity, in fact I believe they never looked better at this season of the year, and I think Clackamas county will be able to boast as much grain per acre as any other county in the State.

The fine weather is bringing swarms of people in here, so that one not used to the change of the place might almost imagine that a miniature war had broken out from the numerous tents pitched on either side of Rock creek, a stream flowing through the grounds, and that the hostile parties rendezvoused at Soda Springs.

Preparations are being made for a grand "picnicking" celebration on the Fourth of July. Everybody is invited to bring their "darters" sons and dinner baskets. Reading, speaking, and climbing greased poles, come first upon the list; then a grand procession to dinner; after which a sack race, plug uglies and various other "uglies," find their place. At night a grand ball, concert, etc.

Our little watering-place is steadily gaining in its numbers of campers, boarders, etc., and every Sunday finds a large number of the surrounding population of the country gathered in at the Spring, playing croquet, running, jumping, swinging, etc. The surrounding forests are traversed and ransacked by naturalists and lovers of nature, as well as by nimrods in quest of the game which abounds in these grand old woods.

THE TERRITORIES.

The ship Ventus, with 1,500 tons of iron for the Puyallup road, will soon be due at Tacoma.

The Tacoma Herald thinks old nature got in some of her sublimest work on Mount Rainier. Many people thought the same long ago.

A man named Kelly, at Skagit, accidentally shot himself while handling a gun a few days ago. The ball passed directly through the head, killing him instantly.

Several families from Cameron county, Pa., have arrived at Lewiston. They are well pleased with the country, and on their report fifteen or twenty families more will follow.

There are two small vessels in the seal business at Port Orford. There are thousands of the animals on the rocks about the mouth of the Coquille river, and they are destroying the fish so that the river is nearly valueless for fishing purposes. It is estimated that a full grown seal takes in sixty pounds of fish a day.

Another warehouse to hold 40,000 bushels of wheat, is building at Corvallis.

Silver Coin—4½@5 per cent. discount.

Domestic Produce

In this department of trade during the week there has been a fair degree of activity but no large movement if we except the wool clip, which has been coming forward quite freely, and as the tendency of prices at the East is rather upward than otherwise, dealers have been free shippers, the last steamer for San Francisco taking a large quantity to be sent East. Prices as a rule are steady and unchanged since last week's report. Wheat has experienced a decided decline, and holders who can do so prefer to ship to San Francisco, than to sell here at current rates offered. Generally domestic products are in liberal supply both for the local trade and for export.

Groceries.

Wholesale and jobbers' prices for staple groceries are as follows: Coffee, 20@21½c per lb; sugars crushed in bbls., 15c per lb, granulated 14¾, Island No. 1 11@11¾, medium 10@10¾, No. 2 8@9; salt, bag $12 per ton, ground rock $14, Liverpool coarse $18, do fine $22 50@25; syrups in kegs 82½@ per gal. in bbls. 75c; teas, Japan in papers 30@45c per lb; Corbitt & Macleay's registered brands, extra choicest 45@47½c, extra fine 35@37½c, Oregon seal 55c; rice, China No. 1 6@6½c, No. 2 5¾@6c, Sandwich Islands 6c, Japan do.

The American People.

No people in the world suffer as much with Dyspepsia as Americans. Although years of experience in medicine had failed to accomplish a certain and sure remedy for this disease and its effects, such as Sour Stomach, Heart-burn, Waterbrash, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Liver Complaint, coming up of the food, low spirits, general debility, &c., yet since the introduction of GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER we believe there is no case of Dyspepsia that cannot be immediately relieved. 30,000 dozen sold last year without one case of failure reported. Go to your Druggist and get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try it. Two doses will relieve you. Regular Size 75 cents. Agents, Crane & Brigham, Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco.

BOSS TWEED.

What he Proposed to Tell, and how it became Public--Letter by his Counsel to the Attorney General of New York.

The Negotiations for Tweed's Release.

NEW YORK, June 21.—John J. Townsend, counsel for Wm. M. Tweed, makes public to-day the history of the negotiations with Attorney General Fairchild for the release of Tweed. He says:

On the 23d of February you (Fairchild) and Mr. Peckham in my company, called in the evening to see Tweed at Ludlow street jail. The object of this visit was that you might give Tweed to understand that nothing short of a complete confession of his crimes and accomplices would be accepted by you. In contrast with your subsequent actions that interview stands out most creditable to you. Tweed, I remember, endeavored to give you his idea on subjects on which you desired special information. Nearly six years had elapsed since he had been associated with ring matters, and his memory of some things connected with them had become somewhat indistinct. You declined, however, to suggest any special matter, and said to him in effect that you desired he should consult with me and have me make a proposition to you, thus intimating that in your position as prosecutor you did not think it proper to hold direct communication with him. In accordance with this understanding, I prepared a brief statement in letter form on the 26th of February, and addressed it to you. It contained the names of members of the legislature with whom Tweed had corrupt dealings, and the names of a few others who had been benefitted by ring practices, and was intended only as a summary of what he could do. To show his good faith this letter addressed to you I handed to Peckham, who said he was going to Albany the next day, and I was not a little astonished to learn from you on the 5th of March when I met you at the rooms of the state board of charities in this city that you had not received it. From about this time I believe I neither heard from nor saw anything of you until about the 4th of April, when I met you with your friend Carolan O'Brien. Bryant seemed to work matters to suit yourself. Your confidence in him, of course, induced Tweed to believe he was your mouthpiece. I was, in consequence, to a great extent ignored—so much so that I seriously considered the propriety of withdrawing from all connection with the matter. The only information I could receive as to how matters stood was through Bryant, and I was informed by him you did not desire Peckham to have anything further to do in the matter. Bryant, from my earliest connection with Tweed's affairs since his return had more or less interested himself in them by pretending to convey information to Tweed as to myself from O'Conor, who in fact had had no connection, as he afterwards stated to me, with the ring cases since December 3d. He gained to a considerable degree my confidence and the absolute confidence of Tweed. As early as February I received a letter from him, of which the following is a copy, endorsing Field's letters to Tweed:

GRAND UNION HOTEL, N. Y., Feb. 21st.

Dear Mr. Townsend—I presume you have seen Dewey and heard of his favorable hearing with the Attorney General. I send you enclosed letters as I will not be in town to-morrow. Mr. O. C., having read them, desired me to have them placed in Peckham's hands with the suggestion that the iron was now hot, and it was time to strike. I shall see you to-morrow evening and send you a letter. In case you should meet Peckham to-morrow and should have exact opportunity, use them with him and the Attorney General. Yours truly,

O. B. BRYANT.

Mr. Tweed has since informed me while I was impressing upon him the absolute necessity of making a clean breast of his misdeeds in conformity with the tenor and spirit of his letter to O'Conor, and what was then believed to be your wishes, Bryant was advising him it was not your desire he should do so, and that my persistence was only the result of Kelly's advice to make political capital out of it. This, Tweed informs me was the cause of his estrangement from me. This will explain also the cause why Tweed's full statement was not submitted on the 17th of April. Tweed well knows he must conform to your wishes if he expects to be liberated from under his prosecutions. He felt it was comparatively an unimportant feature in his case, and he was impressed for a long time that Bryant really represented you, and during the month of March he had reasons for thinking so and of being confirmed in such belief. For reasons which I never knew my interviews with Peckham were suspended, and when at the Buckingham Hotel one morning prior to the 17th of April I asked you in order to make myself certain on the point whether it was your desire I should not consult with Peckham, you stated you wished me to bring all information to you personally. Peckham will probably remember that I walked with you aside after this interview closed and then left with him, then excused myself for not having called on him in reference to the Tweed matters. The following letter from Bryant addressed to me is I believe the first letter I received from him after his association with you:

NEW YORK, March 13.

My Dear Mr. Townsend: I have just got in on the night train, having left Albany at 4 o'clock. A deferred appointment with Fairchild was made for 7 o'clock last evening at his office with closed doors and lasted until half past twelve. I have no hope of presenting the interview in the scope of this epistle, but the result was most satisfactory. He accepted Tilden's invitation for himself and wife, and will be at Gramercy Park over Sunday next. *He expects you to go to Fort Washington on Sun*day with Tilden and for the liberation of our client immediately. The future conduct of the affair will be confined to O'Conor and the Attorney General. I shall see our happy client this morning and will see you further after my return from Sleepy Hollow. I entered fully upon the extensive insurance field with Fairchild, and have established in that connection a most important and valuable feature. Very truly, etc.

This letter, looked at in the light of subsequent events, it seems to me exhibits a degree of intimacy with Bryant which Tweed or I might be excused for relying on. A few days thereafter I received the following telegram from Bryant.

ALBANY, March 22.

The understanding is absolute, as I said, and all bright for a close next week. Home to-morrow.

BRYANT.

And on the same day Bryant telegraphed to Foster Dewey, formerly Tweed's secretary, as follows:

I shall close the first of next week. See that no word is said to a soul, until I get back to-morrow.

BRYANT.

That it might not become a matter for reporters to comment on, that Tweed was receiving telegrams and correspondence, the name of Luke Grant was selected as the one under which to address him, and on March 27th he received from Bryant the following:

BUCKINGHAM HOTEL.

To Luke Grant, 70 Ludlow Street Jail: Solid. See me at 11, the moneral later. G. UNION.

Sure enough on the same day you appeared at Ludlow street jail with your fides achates, Bryant. This was an interview impressed by Bryant on two days, one that I was to know nothing about, and you never alluded to it until I subsequently expressed my astonishment to you that I was not informed of your intention. Then you pretended to know nothing about Bryant, and had thought he was Tweed's friend. This was a weak explanation. Tweed says that at this interview you showed no interest except on the subjects of Senator Woodin and a certain newspaper editor, about whom you were particularly eager. You carried off a certain statement which he made about them and have not returned it. Please do so. Tweed informed only to save himself and not ruin anybody else. It was not intended that his confession should be used for any political purpose, and he regretted you said you wished to make political capital out of it; but he was powerless. Next day you called again and took the papers, which you still have and Tweed wishes. The same day Bryant called and got a fuller sworn statement about Woodin and the editor and carried it away with many checks, saying they were for O'Conor and you. O'Conor denies he ever saw them or wanted them. Bryant has told me and Tweed that Tilden had them. Bryant again telegraphed Tweed next day, reassuringly. I got a note from Bryant, March 29th, at the Grand Union, which indicated that the papers had been taken to Albany by you, and you thought they were precious treasures and would be valuable. You assured me about April 2d that if Tweed made a full confession and restored all the property he had, he would be released, and not otherwise. John Kelly told me you made the same statement to him.

This, Townsend says, was the reason he believed the Attorney General was sincere. Bryant kept telegraphing favorably. Townsend elaborates on the difficulties of preparing an honest and truthful statement of things about which Tweed had forgotten much. After the statement was prepared Kelly read and considered it complete and satisfactory, and on the 10th of April he (Townsend) started with it to Albany and presented it, extracting from Fairchild a promise to return it to him without making or publishing any extracts from it whatever. Fairchild promised it should be sacred to all eyes but Samuel J. Tilden's and Fairchild's father, who were advisers. It was understood that if these pledges were broken Tweed should be released.

Tweed, in his statement, starts out by saying all things in it are true so far as he knows, and what he has on information he believes. Tweed does not ask a nol pros of his case nor his release from liability, but asks a release from jail on his own recognizance, and that his property be taken in part payment of the judgment of $6,000,000, and in return for such treatment he will give full evidence, whenever the Attorney General may desire, relative to his connection with frauds of his own or others. Tweed offers

First—To give up his entire property, real and personal, in which he has been interested since 1870 and submit to an examination of his effects; to satisfy the attorney general that the schedule is honest and that he gives up all he will give it up by a full and general assignment.

Second—To furnish valuable testimony to New York City in certain specified suits, saving the city thereby nearly $2,000,000.

Third—To transfer to the attorney general all the checks he has which he mentions in the annexed schedule with his testimony regarding them and that of others.

Fourth—To give evidence for the people in all cases when the attorney general considers it valuable.

Fifth—To devote himself as assiduously to the carrying out of these promises as he has hitherto displayed in protecting his associates in crime.

On the 17th of April, said Townsend, one of Fairchild's politica and personal friends told him Tweed should make a statement regarding his connection with the two leading railroads in New York state, while he was Senator, and of corrupt dealings with two gentlemen whom he named—one a Democrat and one a Republican, both of high position. Tweed accordingly made a statement very damaging to the railroad corporations, but said he knew nothing derogatory of the two gentlemen named. Townsend suggests that as Fairchild's two advisers—Tilden and his father—had been counsel for these corporations, it was a false step to censure them. He asserts that doubtless Tweed, by his testimony, could save a large amount of money for the city. Tweed offered to prove

First—The composition, existence and origin of the ring; its personnel; division of spoils, manner of raising money for corrupt legislation; the implication of heads of departments here, giving checks and notes which he himself made in evidence.

Second—Working of the rings in former board of supervisors, with names of members and persons who presented fraudulent bills.

Third—He gave a large number of names of members of the Legislature with whom he had corrupt dealings while in the Senate.

Fourth—He mentioned the names of controlling lobbyists in the Senate.

Fifth—He detailed his knowledge of heavy suits against the city involving millions.

Sixth—He offered his own corroborative testimony against the New York Printing Co.

Seventh—He detailed the union between the ring and managers of a great Railroad Co. in the state.

Eighth—He showed how the corrupt combinations controlled city politics.

Ninth—As state senator he set forth the manner of obtaining corrupt legislation.

Tenth—He furnished a complete schedule of all his real estate, and gives other inducements in a financial way.

All these points were fortified by checks, etc.

It was at Fairchild's suggestion that Tweed refused to testify before the Woodin committee, on the ground that he might criminate himself. Thereupon a gentleman of distinguished position called on him (Townsend) saying Pelton, Tilden's nephew, wanted him to say that Tilden thought it would be better for Tweed to give his evidence to the committee, but this Townsend declined peremptorily to allow, as it appeared a political dodge.

Townsend here recites a conversation with Fairchild, in which they discussed the subject of Tweed's release, and in which Fairchild intimated he could be released in a few days. Thus the matter dragged along, Tweed growing worse with his malady daily, the doctors predicting danger to his life unless a decision be speedily given and suspense removed. Townsend entreated for a speedy decision as a matter of charity and humanity, but Fairchild was indifferent. Finally Fairchild informed him the whole matter had been sent to Peckham, in New York, for final advice. This violated the promise that Tweed should be released if the documents were shown to anybody outside.

Meantime the Sweeney trial was brought up, and Peckham expressed a desire to examine Tweed to see what evidence he could give in that case. Whitney also saw the statement without permission and perhaps others. These gentlemen have avowed that Tweed was a valuable witness, and Peckham has said openly that he thought Tweed would be used, but that it lay with the Attorney General to decide. Townsend then brands Fairchild as one who has the proud distinction of having saved from exposure thieves and rascals.

Tweed's Plan Spoiled.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Secretary of State Bigelow, to-day, in defense of Mr. Fairchild's action in the case of Tweed, said that while the statement was under consideration, information reached the Attorney General that Tweed has to his credit in Europe two million dollars, and that he is only waiting to secure his discharge to rejoin his confederates to embark with them in a large street railway speculation in Madrid.

WHAT OREGON PAPERS SAY.

Benton Democrat: What we want is to secure the election of some man from this valley whose interests are identical with ours. There are men in Benton and other adjoining counties as well qualified and able to represent the state in Congress as any from Portland.

Albany Democrat: The committee will not occupy much time in investigating the election of Senator Grover—as there is absolutely nothing to investigate; and will therefore have considerable leisure to utilize in recreation, travel and sight-seeing; and we should all see that they are afforded the fullest opportunity to gratify their desire in this line.

Eugene Guard: What is written is written, what is done is done. "There is no use crying over spilt milk," but Democracy has suffered enough at the hands of its nominal friends in Oregon. The rank and file are true, though perhaps slightly demoralized, which makes it absolutely necessary that their future leaders should possess their confidence in order to insure success.

Hillsboro Independent: The Astorian is mistaken when it thinks that Portland wants a certain railway communication with the East. It wants none whatever. Its high tariff jobbing ring have made what they possess solely from the isolation of Portland and Oregon, and railway communication with the Eastern states would break up the commercial "corner" they have focalized from.

Corvallis Gazette: Oregon wants railroads: iron is now very low, cheaper perhaps than it will be again for years. We have no municipal debts, and for good prospective roads there is no difficulty in obtaining credit for long time, with quite reasonable interest. If we have to wait through the years till it is convenient to change the constitution till the golden opportunity will have passed, and the loss and detriment to the best interest of the state would be beyond calculation.

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

A Battle in Asia Minor.

LONDON, June 21.—We have only detailed information respecting the first conflict in the open field between the Turks and Russians in Armenia, when, at Mukhtar Pasha's orders, Mehemet advanced through the passes from Araras valley and Pasim plain to meet the Russians. Mehemet entrenched at Zeidakan, Saidatcham, ten miles southwest of Toprak Kaleh, and in front of the above passes. His artillery was weak, infantry not over 8,000, and he had little cavalry. The Russian left, under Tergukassoff, had 10,000 infantry, plenty of cannon and effective cavalry. The Turks advanced, June 16th, and an artillery duel ensued on the 16th. Six bodies of Russian infantry advanced steadily at 6, under cover of a terrible artillery fire, which the Turks returned. The Russians finally turned the Turkish flank, seized the commanding hill, threw up breast-works, and with four field guns ranged the entire extent of the Turkish line, causing them serious loss. The Turks stood the fire for twenty minutes. Mehemet then fell back, their ammunition failed, and they fled from the heights, followed by the Russian cavalry, with results not clearly known.

Montenegro in Peril.

The Czar now has great concern for Montenegro, which needs assistance.

Milan and the Czar.

VIENNA, June 2...—Prince Milan has been very kindly received by the Czar, who listened with great attention to his account of the difficulties in which Servia is placed. The Czar assured Prince Milan that Servia might always reckon on his sympathies. The opinion of the Czar and his government is still that Servia should not stir. As for any positive prohibition, there can be no question of that, for in so doing Russia would take upon herself the responsibility she has always been careful to avoid.

An Utter Rout.

LONDON, June 21.—Contrary to Turkish reports of the junction of Suleiman Pasha and Ali Saib, a Cettinje correspondent says relative to the Turkish defeat near Spuz: The later accounts show there never was a worse panic or more disastrous rout known in the annals of war between Turkey and Montenegro. It was only the artillery of the forts that saved the Turkish army from complete destruction. The Turkish dead cannot be counted, because they lie along the plain nearly up to Spuz, and the artillery of the city prevents approach. Gen. Petrovich reports about 1,000 dead within the ground recovered by the Montenegrins. The spirits of the people are very high here. It is confidently believed Suleiman will be driven back to Nicsic.

Turks Report Themselves Victorious.

LONDON, June 22.—Turkish advices from Montenegro report that Suleman Pasha has driven the insurgents from Nestrok and taken possession of the town. The Turks now occupy all strategic positions, and the campaign in Montenegro is considered over.

A dispatch from Erzeroum claims that the Russians have been defeated while attempting to pass Delibaba Gorge, sustaining severe loss.

General War Notes.

RUTSCHUK, June 21.—Cannonading continues here. The Russian battery has been dismantled at Globosia.

VIENNA, June 2...—The statement that the occupation of Turkish territory by Austrian troops is imminent is denied in official circles. The mobilization of the army corps is also denied.

LONDON, June 2...—A telegram from Cettinje admits that Suleiman Pasha occupied the strong position of Planilitza unopposed. Owing to the incapacity of Vukivics, the insurgent's leader, who, after he had decided no longer to oppose revictualing Nicsic, remained inactive until the Turks entered that place, instead of providing for the defense of Planilitza.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 21.—The Senate has not agreed to reductions of estimates voted by the Chamber of Deputies. The government consequently referred the budget back to the Deputies.

The Chamber of Deputies has decided by a large majority that it is advisable to postpone for the present the question of the admission of Christians into the army, they continuing to pay exemption tax.

The Levant Herald has been suspended.

British Troops for Egypt.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Tribune's London correspondent says: I have just heard important news—that a considerable British force is under orders to proceed to Egypt. This is in confirmation of a previous dispatch regarding the mobilization of the army, and first direct move England has made in the present European crisis. The cavalry for the Egyptian expedition will consist of three regiments—the 18th, 19th and 21st Hussars Troops to land in Egypt will be replaced with infantry from Malta, consisting of the 42d Highland Light Infantry, 74th Highland and 101st Lenga Fusileers. These corps will be replaced by the 2d Battalion Royal Welsh Fusileers, 60th and 102d regiments and 2d battalion Rifle Brigade, all from Gibraltar. These will remain at Malta until replaced by other troops of the line, not yet named, from England, and will then move on to Egypt. The Brigade Guards, consisting of the second battalion of Grenadiers, the second battalion of Coldstreams and the first battalion of Scotch Fusileers, will move direct from England to Egypt. Col. DeHorsie, of the Grenadier Guards, will command the brigade. In addition to the above force, 5,000 men, all natives, and all Moslems, will be sent to Egypt from India. This will make a total force, as nearly as possible, of 15,000 men. Probably no declaration will be made, but the troops will occupy Egypt ostensibly to protect the Suez canal. English statesmen favor a closer union of English interests there. Annexation of Egypt and a protectorate is now believed the only solution of the problem by which the Queen's vessels may pass unimpeded through the canal, and that no belligerent vessels shall be tolerated there. Actual proprietorship is the only means of securing this end. The time for half measures and expectant policy has passed.

Milan May Enter the Fray.

LONDON, June 22.—A Vienna dispatch says Prince Milan has not been positively forbidden to operate as he pleases on his own account. The possibility is of course by no means excluded that he may enter the party. It is certain the party who have representatives at Ploiesti have done all in their power to urge him to do so. The renewal of hostilities between Turkey and Servia would not have the same significance as the transfer of the Russo-Turkish war into Servia, and if it were as last year, waged far away from the Austrian frontier, Austria would not probably interfere.

THE GREAT ST. JOHNS FIRE.

Details of the Terrible Conflagration.

ST. JOHNS, June 21.—Yesterday was the most calamitous day ever known in the annals of St. Johns. Nothing could have come more suddenly than the fire which destroyed so many valuable lives, wasted property by millions, arrested many and varied forms of industry and spread not only desolation but terror and consternation all around. Public buildings, palaces of commerce, temples of religion, banks, palatial residences, newspaper and telegraph offices, school houses, a most every thing of which the citizens of St. Johns felt proud, were all in a few hours laid in ruins. The loss on hotels, churches, school houses, banks, etc., was made a thousand times more painful by the lamentable destruction of life accompanying it. The fire was discovered in a building owned by Mr. Fairweather, on the south of York's Point Slip, next to McLaughlin's boiler shop. To the latter buildings the flames had spread before the firemen had reached the scene. Engines arrived and did their best to stop the flames, but all efforts were in vain. Nothing could be done. The flames then spread to various buildings on Hayes' wharf, which were also quickly consumed, and the fire broke out with a roar into Smith street, carrying everything before it. From there the flame spread into Drury Lane and Mill street, following that into Dock street, taking both sides. Before this, however, the rear of the London House and adjacent buildings had been attacked. When it was seen the fire would inevitably sweep along Dock and Mill streets. Aid came from Portland in aid of the town engine and firemen. The timber and boxes on fire aided by the wind proved a combination too much for the gallant workers, and almost in despair they saw the flames advance upon them, not slowly, but with a rapidity that appalled the stoutest hearts. The Carleton engine came in a ferry boat and lent its aid. One engine had been stationed at the corner of Mill and Union streets while the men, with branches, were down on Union street opposite Drury Lane. The buildings were a mass of flames at the end of Smith street and Drury Lane, and while the workers were mainly endeavoring to save the fire end there momentarily, a gale took the flames across Union street to the opposite houses and then they receded, but their touch had been fatal and in less than five minutes the buildings were doomed. Both sides of the street were soon in the grasp of the devouring element and the men were obliged to drop their branch pipes and run up the street, after which they dragged the hose after them. Another lot of men were working at the foot of Union street, and by placing boards in front of their faces, managed to battle with the flames until their clothing became singed. Proceeding along Smith street in a southerly direction, the fire soon reached Nelson street and then Robertson's place, then extended to Robertson's wharf and up South wharf. As it gained Wilson street on the south it met the flames coming up that street, and the combination made a terrific heat that could not be borne, allied with a strong wind from the northwest. The entire wharf was soon in a blaze. Half a dozen wood boats were at the head of Market slip, and at the end of the wharves about the same number of schooners. Before the fire had assumed a formidable shape on North wharf the men on the vessels began to pour water on the decks. The water was low just then, and something like this was necessary to extinguish the sparks that were continually showered upon them. Those at the head of the slip were in a quarter of an hour on fire in many places, and it was impossible for each outbreak to receive attention. Before the vessels had been well on fire the flames passed about their masts, which soon offered a stepping stone to the piles at South wharf. Not one of these, west of Ward street, was capable of withstanding the intense heat, and the spars all being of wood they went down as if felled by a hurricane. The schooners in front having been hauled to a place of safety, many of the occupants of stores were off helping their unfortunate brother merchants, and some arrived just in time to save their books. Others were just enabled to witness the destruction of all their stock. Some of the embers lodged in the steeple of Trinity church, Germain street, and with nothing to save it, for the fire was so high as to be almost beyond reach and the flames were left to pursue their own way. As the news spread that some wooden houses in Horsefield street, as well as others on Duke street near Victoria Hotel, were on fire, thousands were alarmed, as it was soon seen that the fire was spreading north, south east and west to Germain, Charlotte, Duke and Horsefield streets; not an engine to be had and everything going down before the unrelenting fire. A bullring on Charlotte street had hardly become a prey to the flames when others on the other side followed. In half an hour all but the Germain street side of the square was in ashes. The Victoria Hotel and St. Andrew's Church were in great danger, and the hotel guests and employes began to make preparations for leaving. In a majority of cases the inmates had to leave with a scanty wardrobes. About the same time St. Andrew's Church took fire and was speedily consumed. Adjoining the church a two story brick building, occupied as a tailor shop in the lower story and by Beacon, Pioner and Sloam, lodges of Odd Fellows, as well as Melhuet's Encampment of that order on the upper floors. Some of the members managed to get in the building and save most of the regalia and paraphernalia prior to its destruction. The buildings at the southern corner of Dock and Union streets, and on opposite corner caught almost simultaneously. To say the fire raged fiercely here would but too faintly describe the terrible manner in which it kept on, unheeding the streams of water directed upon it. The engine was obliged to shift its position from this quarter, the heat being most terrific. There was danger, too, of the hose being burned, and of all things the preservation of the hose was most essential. The engine was taken down Duke street, but the fire kept a rapid pursuit. It also spread along the western part of Mill street, crossing over to the opposite side and igniting Rankins & Son's biscuit manufactroy. Then it followed toward North street from South wharf. The flames entered into Ward and extended to Peters' wharf in remarkably short time, carrying everything before it; then proceeded to Water street, thence soon made its way to the southern part of Market square, making a jump up to Prince William street. At this stage a wooden house on Canterbury street took flames and Church street buildings were soon imperiled. Then the flames advanced to Princess and King streets and buildings on Germain in front of Trinity church began to take fire very rapidly. The academy of music was also destroyed; the stores in the buildings occupied and Knights of Pythias' hall, in front, up stairs. A great many theaters lost part of their wardrobes and all their scenery was burned. When the fire reached Market square and obtained a strong hold on many fine buildings, several explosions were heard coming from one of the hardware stores. They caused a general scattering of people about, and the report reached as far up as the courthouse.

The following newspaper offices with their plant and stock were destroyed: The Freeman, Evening Globe, Daily Telegraph, Daily News, Watchman and Religious Intelligencer. The Globe, News, Intelligencer and Watchman had job offices attached. Messrs. Schubb & Co. lost a large job office, book binding, etc. Messrs. McMillan lost their job office, binding, etc. Mr. Knodel lost his job office.

The following are among the list of public buildings burned: Postoffice, Bank of New Brunswick, city building, custom house, Maritime Bank building, in which are the Bank of Montreal and Nova Scotia; office of school trustees, etc.; Bank of Nova Scotia, the new buildings of the Academy of Music, in which was the Knights of Pythias' Hall, Victoria Hotel, Odd Fellows' Hall, No. 1 engine house, Orange Hall, King street Temperance Hall, King street East Dramatic Lyceum, Victoria school house, Temple of Honor Hall, Barnes' Hotel, Royal St. John Hotel, Arcadia Hotel, the Brunswick House, Bay View Hotel, International Hotel, Wiggins' Orphan Asylum, Deaf and Dumb Institution.

The churches burned are Trinity, St. Andrews' Church, Germain street Methodist Church, Germain street Baptist Church, Germain street Christian Church, Duke street St. James' Church, Leinster street Baptist Centenery Church; St. Philipi, Carmarthen street; Mission street Methodist; Presbyterian, Pitts street; Mission Church, St. David's Church, Reformed Presbyterian Church, Sheffield street Mission House.

The following persons are reported to have lost their lives in the fire: Benj. Williams, Germain street; Harold Gilbert, near Victoria Hotel; Wm. Minickle, of James Adams & Co.'s establishment; Garrett Cotter, of James N. May's establishment; the mother of ex-Mayor Reed and his two aunts; two men, whose names are unknown, reported run over and killed; Hugh McGovern, of Strait shore. The body of an unknown man was found on Prince William street this morning. Many persons are reported missing. There were many persons hurt and accidents were quite common, in particular among the brave firemen. No clear estimate of the value of the property destroyed or insurance can be given. It is certain ten or twelve millions are gone. Insurance men think their risks may run up to five millions. The entire business portion of the city is destroyed. Not a leading establishment has escaped. All the principal dry goods stores, leading grocers, all shipbrokers, commission merchants, all the wholesale liquor, flour, provision, coal, salt, lumber, tea, and West India goods stores, are utterly wiped out. Forty odd blocks or nearly 200 acres, south of King street, have not six buildings remaining. The valuables of the Bank of Montreal and Bank of Nova Scotia were removed to the vault and safes of the Bank of New Brunswick. It is not known how the latter stood the test. Every street, square and alley is filled with furniture, and thousands of people are without either food or shelter. The International Co.'s steamer New York sheltered and fed a thousand persons last night, and vessels in the stream have large numbers of people on board. Thousands had to get away from the lower part of the city by boats.

NEW YORK, June 21.—A Portland, Me., private dispatch from St. Johns, at 1 P. M., says: After careful estimate, it has been decided that fully half the city is destroyed. Women and children are on the streets crying for bread, and the scene beggars description.

BOSTON, June 21.—Prince William street runs from Market square to Reed's Point, and the fire seems to have gone thither. It was entirely occupied as a business street, and was the location of the heaviest business trades in the city, in fact, by almost every class of business. Many of the buildings were very fine ones, having been built within a comparatively short time, as this street has been the locality of the most serious fires which have visited the city in years past. Several new stone buildings—insurance offices—and many of the old buildings were of solid granite and very substantial. The fire must have worked from this point to one of the streets parallel with King street, sweeping all before it to Germain street. Between Prince William street and Germain street were quite a number of narrow streets and courts, crowded with wooden buildings, many very old and occupied almost entirely for business. In this square were several newspaper offices. Reaching Germain street, on the side toward Prince William, the fire strikes a good number of small stores. Here, also, was the best hotel in the city, the Victoria, said to have been consumed. It was the very best hotel, perhaps, east of Boston. On Germain street is the oldest Episcopal church in the city, and the old Grammar School building, both of which are probably burned.

Dispatches do not say how far down Germain street the fire went. If it reached Green's square it consumed the finest residences in the city. Besides the loss on buildings, the loss on goods must be enormous, as the burned district contained nearly every wholesale house of nearly every class of business, and nearly every retail store in the city. Among the estates destroyed on Dock street, were a small steamboat agency, Ferguson's estate, Hammond's estate, Park's estate, and Robertson, Stanton and Johnson estates. The buildings were brick and stone. On Market Square were Thomas' hardware store, Lewis' hardware store, London House, Jourden's dry goods establishment, Thompson's jewelry establishment, Smith's drug store, and two or three large clothing stores. On the east side of Prince William street were McGhee Bros' large dry goods store, then four large stone buildings destroyed by the last fire, and not just rebuilt; two or three large dry goods stores, two book stores, eastern express companies, insurance companies, and Jones' banking house. East of Prince William street and south of Princess were the city hall, a five story granite building, office of the Daily and Weekly Telegraph, a large brick building which was being remodeled for the Bank of Nova Scotia, a large building occupied principally by insurance companies, Bond's hotel, a large double building and several buildings occupied for residences and business. On Prince William street, south from Market square, all the buildings in this block were of brick and occupied as follows: Robert Marshall, insurance office; a clothing store, Jallard & Banning, James A. Logan and Steeves Bros, (the three latter are wholesale and, retail dealers in dry goods), Jardine & Co., wholesale grocers; Hayward, hardware; Deveber & Sons, wholesale dry goods and groceries; Phillips, banker and insurance offices; Chubb & Co., bookstore; new post office, a splendid building of freestone and polished granite; old Bank of New Brunswick, freestone building, the oldest and most substantial in the city; brick building of Merritt estate and various business structures down to Duke street. On King street the W. U. Telegraph office in Barlow Hall building, in which there are three other stores; this building was six stories high of brick and stone; two large wooden buildings occupied as hardware and shoe stores, a high brick building occupied by two clothing stores, five brick and stone buildings occupied by Manchester, Robinson & Ellison, dry goods dealers, and Morris & Co., fancy goods; Merritt's brick building occupied as clothing store, Kay's brick building occupied by three stores, jeweler, shoe dealer and clothier, American hotel, Banning's brick building occupied by McKenzie, dry goods, and by Chandler, drug store; Vernon's brick building occupied by a dry goods store, book store and a jewelry store.

Aid for the Sufferers.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The board of trade appointed a committee to raise subscriptions, and a paper was prepared, which was laid on the table. Subscriptions up to 6 o'clock were $6,585, and a large amount will doubtless be added to-morrow. The Masonic fraternity held a meeting to-day and instructed their secretary to telegraph to the Grand Master in St. Johns for instructions as to what was needed, with assurance that all Masonic families there would be provided for.

BANGOR, Me., June 22.—A meeting of citizens was held this evening to devise means for assisting sufferers by the St. Johns fire. All the bakeries in the city are now at work, and to night a special train will be sent with bread and cooked meats for the sufferers.

TORONTO, Ont., June 22.—The members of the Corn Exchange subscribed $600 for the relief of the sufferers at St. Johns. The Board of Trade subscribed $1,000.

MONTREAL, June 22.—The citizens are working hard for assistance to the St. Johns people.

Insurance Losses.

The following close estimate can be made in regard to the loss by insurance companies, a majority of which companies have district agencies which include that district, as also have several Ontario companies. The losses will be reported at the head agency district, in which St. Johns is included. The estimate is consequently imperfect. The National has about $140,000 in the burnt district; Citizens' loss, about $130,000; Stadacona, $150,000; Royal Canadian Insurance Co. losses, roughly estimated at $800,000; Quebec Fire Insurance Co. and Canada agencies probably lose nothing; North British and Mercantile, several heavy risks; Canada Fire and Marine, supposed heavily interested. The only risk of the Royal of England taken through this agency, was on the Bank of British North America which was saved, but risks taken in the New Brunswick agency are no doubt very extensive; Northern and Scottish Imperial are without any loss; risks of the former in St. Johns are reinsured in Gladstone. The British American Assurance Company has $27,000 in the district.

Further Relief.

The Bank of British America and Bank of Montreal, to-day, each sent 500 barrels of flour and 100 barrels of pork. This evening there left for St. Johns 1,000 barrels of flour, 100 barrels of beef, a car load of bread, and a car load of biscuit.

HALIFAX, June 22.—At a public meeting to-day $10,000 was raised for the St. Johns sufferers. A committee of the mayor and three citizens are appointed to proceed to St. Johns to manage the distribution of relief. A resolution was passed, recommending the city council to offer if necessary a grant of $10,000, the city to be ass state, who has by law the superintendence of such matters. The question is, therefore, can the prosecuting attorney do anything about it?

It is not alone that the secretary omits to take action to enforce the return of this money; the graver objection is that he continues, we are assured, to draw warrants for payments which no law authorizes. The omission might perhaps be overlooked for the present; the commission becomes a gross breach of duty which every repetition aggravates. One thing the district attorney may clearly do. He may cause inquiry to be made before a grand jury to ascertain if there be any violation of law, or official delinquency; and in case such be found the proceeding is then a plain one, as may be seen by section nineteen of the seventh article of the constitution.

In this matter we have no intent or desire to misrepresent any one. If, however, there be any neglect of duty or violation of law, entailing loss on the public treasury, it is the right of the people to know it. From several sources we hear that the unauthorized payments are continued. Shall the matter be investigated? It can be done, undoubtedly, in the manner indicated.

Last October General Stone, of Mississippi, wrote a letter to Attorney-General Taft at Washington, in which reply was made to a speech Taft had delivered at Cincinnati, in the course of which reference was made to Mississippi affairs. Stone said: "I am more than willing, and have been able, to execute the laws in Mississippi and conserve the public peace. The perpetrators of wrongs are responsible to the state authorities, and I am able to bring all such to justice, and am determined to do so." These were fine promises. But no one has yet even been arrested for the terrible murders in Kemper county.

It was Ben Bill, of Georgia, who, in a recent speech, insisted on a new constitution for that state, because the present one "brands the war as a rebellion, thus insulting the living and dishonoring the patriotic dead." It is galling tyranny to live under a constitution that calls a rebellion a rebellion.

PORTLAND HIGH SCHOOL.

GRADUATING EXERCISES—BENEFIT OF THE SCHOOL LIBRARY—CONFERRING OF DIPLOMAS—HOME TALENT—AN IMMENSE AUDIENCE IN ATTENDANCE.

Never have we seen Masonic Hall so completely filled as it was last evening on the occasion of the annual exhibition given by the pupils of the public schools for the benefit of the library and the graduating exercises of the Portland high school. Every seat was filled long before the hour announced for the exercises to begin, and chairs and benches were brought in until the aisles were filled, and even then many were compelled to remain standing the entire evening. The teachers and pupils crowded the dressing rooms on either side the stage, and in fact the house was filled to its utmost capacity, but notwithstanding its crowded condition the audience remained quiet and apparently deeply interested in the exercises. The first piece on the somewhat lengthy programme was a vocal quartette entitled "The Sailor Lad," admirably rendered by the ever popular Amphion Club. This was followed by an essay by Miss Amy C Adams on "The Use and Abuse of Language," which was appreciated by those who were near enough the essayist to hear it, evincing deep thought and a thorough appreciation of the subject matter in hand. The declamation, "What a Little Boy Has," by Master Felix Friedlander, was a very creditable rendition for a six year old boy, and his effort was loudly applauded. Miss Ollie Fliedner then favored the audience with the recitation of that touching little poem, "Papa's Letter with God," in a manner that gave universal satisfaction. Miss Grace DeLin followed with a German essay, "Die Smoheit," which no doubt possessed great merit, but was of course unintelligible to the majority of her hearers. She read it however very freely and fluently, and in a plain and distinct tone of voice. An instrumental duet "Qui Vive Galop," by Miss Katie Dreyer and Miss Abbie Atwood, was very nicely executed. "The Old Deacon's Lament," a declamation by James Fryer, was quite amusing and caused a general laugh. Master Harold Pilkington recited "The Public School Song" in a very acceptable manner. Perry M. Barker's essay on "Intemperance" was a vivid picture of its horrors and an earnest appeal to all to avoid it and strive to further the cause of total prohibition. Miss Gertie Gallick recited that beautiful poem, "How He Saved St. Michael," and in her hands it proved one of the rarest gems of the evening. Miss Stella E. Taylor read a well composed essay on "Possibilities," picturing to her classmates the prizes within their grasp, wherein fame and fortune might be won if earnestly and studiously sought after. Mast. Chester Dolph inquired of the audience in poetry, "Who can tell what the baby thinks?" The declamation was very clever considering his age. Chas. A. Ritter, a colored pupil, then read a French essay on "L' Astronomie Primitif." Our reporter's French was sadly neglected during his college career, and he could not appreciate it as he otherwise would. We could but notice, however, that he read it off with apparent ease and freedom, and the production was undoubtedly very creditable. Miss Louise Aldrich recited a poem entitled "School Statistics," which was favorably received by the audience. The vocal duet by Misses Helen Cason and A. C. Abbott was very fine, both ladies having sweet voices, which are well trained. Wm. C. Jenne then read a lengthy essay on "The Mind." It was deep in thought and sentiment, but he lacked elocutionary powers, Miss Jennie A. Young's recitation, "Death Doomed" was something unusually fine, and the little lady was enthusiastically applauded. Gaines M. Adams' essay on "Civilization, Past and Present" was very fair, containing some sarcastic allusions, painfully plain. The recitation "Which Shall it Be," by Miss Josie Sullivan was a very clever rendition throughout. Miss Lutie Wakefield's rendition of that exciting poem descriptive of "The Burning Prairie" was certainly very fine and vividly portrayed. This was followed by a recitation descriptive of the "Bursting of the Williamsburg Dam" by Miss Eugenie S. Combs which was admirably delivered. Miss Dora McCord then recited "The Creed of the Bells" in which she imitated the ringing tones of the various church bells in a country village. The effort was warmly applauded. The graduating class then took seats upon the stage, and Charles B. Cardinell delivered the oration and valedictory address, his subject being "Life a Drama." In its recital he alluded briefly to their school life and the commencement of life's earnest duties, and paid a handsome tribute of praise to their patient and faithful teachers, and then turning to his classmates, reminded them of the stern realities of life, urging upon them the necessity of earnest toil. It was a fine effort throughout, and feelingly and touchingly delivered. Then followed the presentation of the diplomas by Hon. J. J. Browne, county school superintendent, who preluded it with a brief address, embodying much kindly advice and friendly admonitions, after which he formally presented each of the following graduates with their hard-earned diplomas: Charles B. Cardinell, Wm. G. Jenne, Perry M Barker, Charles A. Ritter, Gaines M. Adams, Stella E. Taylor, Grace W. DeLin, Eugenia S. Combs and Amy C. Adams. The exercises closed with a quartette by the Amphion Club, and all went home well pleased with the events of the evening. We congratulate the teachers and pupils alike on the success of the entertainment, and trust it has proved a financial success as well.

PICNICS.

We are requested to say that the picnic of the Sabbath school of the First Presbyterian church, appointed for to-day, will be postponed unless the weather shall prove pleasant and inviting.

UNITARIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.—The steamer City of Salem is chartered by the Unitarian Sunday School for their special service to-day, and will leave Pacific wharf at 8:30 A., M., and again at 2:30 P. M., for Ross' Island, taking the entire party in the afternoon to Oregon City falls. This steamer will take no parties to the race course at either of the above named hours.

The postponed picnic of the St. Andrew's Society has now been fixed to take place on the 4th of July, at McMillan's grounds, near Oswego. The steamer City of Salem has been chartered for the day, and will make two trips to the grounds—the first at 8:30 A. M. and the second at 1 P. M.—from the Pacific wharf. In order also to accommodate pleasure seekers at Oregon City, on that day, who may wish to join in the picnic or come to Port and it has been arranged that the steamer will make an extra trip. After landing the excursionists at the picnic grounds, she will proceed to Oregon City, leaving there about 10:30, returning from Portland in the evening at 6, calling at the picnic grounds going and coming. A band of music will accompany the excursionists, and a good programme of dancing, races and Highland games has been prepared. Altogether this will be one of the most enjoyable picnics of the season. Extra care will be taken that none but respectable citizens will be present, and no intoxicating liquor will be sold on the ground. Tickets, $1 each; children between 6 and 12, 50 cents, and all under 6 free.

REPORT OF GRAND JURORS.

In the circuit court of the State of Oregon for Multnomah. In the matter of the report of the grand jury for the June term, A. D. 1877.

To Hon. E. D. Shattuck, Judge of the above entitled court: We, the grand jury for the June term, would respectfully report:

That we have examined and considered the matters that came before us of a criminal nature, and then visited and examined the county jail under the jailer, Kit Morrill.

The jail is in as good condition as it can be kept without some repair or improvement. It needs plastering in the jailor's room, and should be better ventilated, as it is under ground and too damp for the health of the prisoners, and we recommend that the earth against the walls be removed at least four feet.

We also visited the city jail and found it in good condition.

Also the insane asylum at East Portland under the management of Dr. J. C. Hawthorne, and found it as well kept as it could be. We found under treatment patients as follows: males 167, females 66, total 227.

We visited the poor farm of this county under charge of Mr. Cleghorn. There are at present six persons kept there at the county's charge. The farm and buildings are kept neat, clean and in good order. As far as we could judge from a casual examination the manner in which the poor farm is conducted is satisfactory.

THE IDAHO INDIAN WAR.

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

Latest from the Front—Death of Lew Day from Wounds—Other Murders Reported on Salmon—Settlers Forted up on Slate Creek.

Volunteers but no Arms—Arrival of Soldiers at Lewiston.

From the Teller-Extra.

LEWISTON, Thursday morning, 8 o'clock, June 22.—Pike Davenport, John Havard and two other men arrived from Mt. Idaho last night. They report that Mrs. Manuel and child, and George Woodard, had been murdered on Salmon river. Most of the remaining families are forted up at Slate creek, and have a defense of about 40 able-bodied citizens. Chapman with 35 volunteers were to proceed from their defenses at Mt. Idaho to reconnoiter the position of the Indians, who are supposed to be somewhere in the direction of Salmon river.

In the fight Charles Horton of the volunteers was killed. One thousand cartridges sent from here had safely arrived at Mt. Idaho. The New Tenino arrived this morning with 107 troops. Dr. Morris came up on her and proceeded at once with Pike Davenport to Mt. Idaho. No extra arms came up on the boat. About 50 volunteers have arrived here from Columbia county, but few of them have suitable arms, but are awaiting them from below. Lew Day has died of his wounds.

The following dispatch was received at military headquarters yesterday morning from Gen. O. O. Howard:

FORT LAPWAI, I.T., June 20—9:25 P.M.

A message received from Col. Perry makes the loss 33, meaning exclusive of Lieut. Theller, whom Capt. Trimble placed, wounded, upon his horse. Theller was afterwards killed. The Florence people reported to having effectually blocked the Indian trail toward Little Salmon and Weiser. Reinforcements leave here Friday morning without fail. It is the worst possible country for us for Indian fighting. Say to our friends, be patient and wait results. Perry, Trimble and Parnell are well.

The following troops were expected to arrive at Lewiston yesterday, and proceed at once to the front: Col. Whipple, with Companies L and E of the cavalry and a couple of Gatlin guns; Company E, fourth artillery, Capt. Miller; Company E, twenty-first infantry, Capt. Miles; Company H, twenty-first infantry, Lieut. Haughey; Company D, twenty-first infantry, Capt. Pollock, and Company B, twenty-first infantry, Capt. Joslyn. The entire force up there at the present time numbers about 300, which with the troops that left here Thursday morning and who will probably arrive there erly this morning, will increase the number to about 475. With this force active service will be at once commenced, and during the ensuing week we may anticipate some exciting news.

Thursday, Gov. S. F. Chadwick received a dispatch from the county judge of Union county, requesting him to forward with all possible speed 5,000 United States musket cartridges and 5,000 needle-gun cartridges. On receipt of the telegram, Gen. Mart. V. Brown, by order of Gov. Chadwick, forwarded by morning's boat 3,000 rounds of cartridges—2,000 musket and 1,000 needle gun cartridges, which go to Judge Brainard, of Union county, to protect settlers exposed to the threatened outbreak of Wallowa Indians. Gen. Brown has also made a requisition on the Secretary of War, through an order from the Governor, for 10,000 rounds of ammunition from Vancouver. The ammunition spoken of was forwarded by the O. S. N. Co. free of charge. There being no funds provided by the state to pay for arms and ammunition, Mr. S. G. Reed gave orders at once to forward the whole lot without charge.

The following dispatch was received yesterday from Salem:

In reply to Gov. Chadwick's request for arms and ammunition, the Secretary of War, McCrary, telegraphs to Gen. McDowell at San Francisco to-day, as follows: "The Governor of Oregon asks for arms and ammunition for volunteers. You will direct them to be furnished upon the Governor's requisition, as provided by joint resolution of July 18, 1876, and March 3, 1877."

The steamer Almota left Celilo Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock, having on board the troops and munitions which left here the same morning.

Mr. John Jack, who is now playing at Astoria, proposes to donate the entire proceeds of the matinee performance to be given at his theater this (Saturday) afternoon, which are to be forwarded to Lewiston, Idaho, to increase the fund for purchase of arms, ammunition and supplies to protect our fellow-citizens there against Indian attack. The Mayor of Astoria appointed the following gentlemen to compose the committee who are to receive and forward the receipts to Lewiston: O. F. Bell, I. W. Case and C. A. McGuire.

The staff of Gen. M. V. Brown will be composed as follows, should the services of the state militia be required: E. Cahalin, Major and Chief of Staff; Majors Herren and Parker A. A. Generals; John M. Gearin Captain and Aid-de-Camp, and Harry McCormick has also been appointed Aid-de-Camp with the rank of Captain and will soon receive his commission.

Further Details. Names of Refugees fortified on Slate Creek. Indians Threaten their Fort and the Lives of the Men.

Volunteers from Boise, Idaho City and other towns. More arms wanted.

Piutes and Shoshones Encamped near Silver City, but declare they are Peaceable.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—A Winnemucca press dispatch says Gov. Brayman of Idaho received a dispatch from Winnemucca, chief of the Piutes, now at Silver City, in which the chief assures the Governor he has no intention of breaking the peace with the whites; that if an Indian outbreak occurs he will remain friendly, but if he wants to fight he will give fair warning.

A press dispatch from Boise City says: By the arrival here last night, the previous reports of the Indian outbreak near Salmon river are substantially confirmed. The scene of the first massacre is on Salmon river and tributaries of that stream coming in from the northern side, draining Camas prairie and the neighboring mountains. The settlement called Camas prairie covers foot hills to the north of Florence mountain, extending several miles northward into the plains which lie between Florence mountain and the breaking down of the table land called Craig's mountain. Mount Idaho is about the center of the range of settlements on Camas prairie, situated at the foot of Florence mountain, sixty-five miles from Lewiston, Idaho. The settlements on Salmon river and its tributaries lie to the south and southwest of Mount Idaho, at a distance from 15 to 30 miles. The Indians did not kill the women or children, but allowed them to be taken under escort of a friendly squaw to Slate creek, which had thus far been unmolested. At Slate creek the whites have fortified themselves in a stockade fort, into which has been received the wives and children of the murdered men, together with the families of the men who had escaped massacre. Gathered in this place are the following persons: Mrs. Henry Elfers and two children, whose husband was murdered at John Day's creek; Mr. Sherwood, wife and grown daughter; Hiram Tilman, wife and several children; Mrs. Wm. Osborne and five children, whose husband was murdered at Harry Mason's, on Salmon river; sister of Harry Mason, murdered in his home; Mrs. H. C. Brown, husband murdered at his store on Salmon river; Mrs. J. Manuel and two children, husband murdered at White Bird postoffice; John Woods, Chas. Ford's wife and 4 children, Mr. Cohen, wife and several children, Wm. Rhett, wife and several children. These few men are thus shut up in the midst of hostile Indians without adequate means of defense and without aid will certainly be overpowered and murdered, as the Indians declare their determination to take the fort and murder the men. It cannot be hoped the Indians will again spare the women and children after the losses they must sustain in capturing the fort, as the men will fight to the last. Our informant says he is reliably informed the Indians did not fire a single building or destroy any property, but cleaned the country of stock which they have driven to the south side of Salmon river. They seem to hope they will ultimately be the undisturbed proprietors of all the property the whites are now compelled to abandon. They think not without reason that before the country can be regained from them an army must be created and a long and doubtful campaign passed through. The Indians have now their principal camp and headquarters on Salmon river just below the mouth of a small stream called Skookum Chuck, while the stock is gathered and pastured on an extensive triangular shaped region formed by the Snake and Salmon rivers and the high mountain range lying about the forks of Payette and Weiser rivers. Here there is abundant pasturage for summer and winter, and here they will doubtless make their final stand.

In contradiction to previous reports that the troops behaved badly, our informant says, by citizens who were in the fight he is assurred the troops, though they allowed themselves to be decoyed into ambush, displayed throughout the action the utmost gallantry, and fought like tigers. About twenty-five or thirty soldiers were killed in about the same number of minutes.

The situation in Northern Idaho far exceeds in gravity any Indian outbreak of our day, and will tax the best resources of the government and of the people immediately interested to subdue the Indians and restore peace to the country. The Indians know the army on this coast is a skeleton and the people helpless from a want of arms.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—A press dispatch from Boise City this evening says twenty-five armed volunteers under command of Capt. Orlando Robbins, an experienced Indian fighter, will start for Northern Idaho, where the settlements are threatened by Indians, with fifty stand of arms for settlers. A few hundred stand of arms belonging to the territory are at the disposal of the Governor, but so many exposed settlements are asking arms and ammunition the supply is likely to be soon exhausted. Volunteer companies are being constantly organized in the various settlements. In Idaho City a company of sixty men was recently formed, but none of these companies are able to move until provided with arms from ordnance stores here.

SILVER CITY, Idaho, June 22.—No trouble is expected with the Indians in this section of Idaho, although the citizens have prepared themselves for any emergency, being now pretty well supplied with arms, ammunition, etc. Many of the old Idaho pioneers reside here and a majority of them have no especial love for redskins of any description, but there will be no trouble unless the Indians are the aggressors. There are over one hundred Piutes encamped fifty miles from here in the vicinity of Mahogany Mountain. Some 300 Shoshones are in camp about sixty miles from here on the road to Corduopia. They claim to be peacefully inclined and profess to have no sympathy with warring Nez Perces. The Piutes are anxious to secure a reservation in Owyhee.

CARD OF THANKS.

The five hundred "Centennial Badges," furnished by L. C. Henrichsen, Esq., free of charge, and given yesterday to the pupils of the public schools of this city, gladdened many little hearts. Principals, teachers and especially the children hereby tender sincere thanks to Mr. Henrichsen for his generosity, kind consideration and thoughtfulness of the little ones at that very opportune time—the closing of the schools. The spirit and the motive are appreciated. Remembering the children and teaching them to love their country, which, next to the worship of God, is the grandest emotion of the human heart.

SAVE YOUR EYES.—Dr. Sassarath, the eminent French oculist, who is now sojourning in our city, will positively take his departure next Monday afternoon. During his very short stay here Dr Sassarath has treated most successfully over 200 cases, many of which embrace the most prominent citizens of Portland—ladies and gentlemen. Not a single person treated by him has returned dissatisfied with the skill and knowledge he has displayed. Several persons who have suffered for years with defective eyes, unable to obtain relief, have procured such treatment and glasses as to be able to read without difficulty. At the urgent solicitation of many citizens, Dr. S. has been induced to prolong his stay until Monday. All who have visited him bestow the highest praise, and declare his skill is truly wonderful. Those whose eyes require attention should call at once, as his stay is brief. The writer knows whereof he speaks, having derived much comfort from the use of his glasses. He can be found at his room, No. 1, St. Charles hotel, from 9:30 A. M. to 5 P. M.

For CATARRH

INSTANTLY relieves and permanently cures this loathsome disease in all its varying stages. It possesses the soothing and healing properties of plants, herbs and barks in their essential form, free from every fibrous contamination, and in this respect differs from every other known remedy. In one short year it has found its way from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and wherever known has become the standard remedy for the treatment of Catarrh. The proprietors have been waited upon by gentlemen of national reputation who have been cured by this remedy, and who have, at considerable expense and personal trouble, spread the good news throughout the circles in which they move. When you hear a wealthy gentleman of intelligence and refinement say "I owe my life to Sanford's Radical Cure," you may feel assured that it is an article of great value and worthy to be classed among the standard medical specifics of the day.

IMPORTANT LETTER
From a Distinguished Physician.

NO single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind, more and sometimes all yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored because but little understood by physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won my hearty approval. I believe it likely to succeed when all the usual remedies fail, because it strikes at the root of the disease, viz: the acidified blood which it heals the ulcerated membrane by direct application to the nasal passages. Its action is based on certain fixed rules, and unless the vital forces are too far exhausted, must, in the great majority of cases, effect a cure. GEO. BEARD, M. D.
Nobscott Block, So. Framingham, Oct. 1, 1874

CATARRH
And Deafness Cured.

Gentlemen—My wife has been troubled with Catarrh for years, and has tried three other remedies without any benefit. She has also been partially deaf in one ear over twelve years. Since she has been using SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE her troubles have been growing rapidly better. At times she can hear as well as ever, and I am confident that a persistent use of the remedy will result in a permanent restoration of her hearing. There are several others here who are using the RADICAL CURE successfully, and I anticipate for it a large sale as a consequence of the never failing relief and cure afforded by its use. Respectfully yours,
A. W. DAVIDSON.

Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Claude Roben, a Frenchman, residing at 825 Dupont street, was discovered dead in his bed this evening, having taken strychnine. He has been employed as a dishwasher in a restaurant, but was lately out of work and drinking heavily, and threatened suicide yesterday.

Political.

At a meeting of the opposition Democratic county committee this evening, resolution of the state committee asking harmony between the two wings of the party in the city was presented, but the committee declined to receive it on the ground that it was improper y addressed to the chairman as a private individual, and not in his official capacity. No particular objection was offered to the resolution in substance.

Pinchback Interviewed.

Pinchback, of Louisiana, arrived this evening in company with Senator Bruce, of Mississippi. Ex-Secretary Chandler laid over at Truckee. Pinchback, in an interview with a Call reporter this evening, gave as his opinion that Hayes' policy in Louisiana had had a good effect and had served to benefit both white and colored. As to the intrinsic justice of his action in the case of South Carolina and Louisiana, he said the colored population of the latter state looked upon it with disfavor, believing that Packard had the same right to the office as the President himself, and he was looking with great interest to the action of the colored voters in Ohio at the coming election, believing they would unmistakably indicate their opposition to the course which they could only construe as an outrage upon the rights of their brethren in Louisiana. He said there was no hope of the resurrection of the Packard power in Louisiana, and that it had never had any strength or ability to make itself respected outside of New Orleans and a few neighboring parishes.

NEVADA.

Mining Tax Suits.

VIRGINIA, June 21.—Complaints were yesterday filed in the office of the District Court for the ten per cent. penalty for tax due from the delinquent Con. Virginia and California mines for the last six months of 1876. The total amount claimed in the papers is $49,618 35. In a former judgment confessed by the companies this amount was included. The judgment was satisfied of record and the county commissioners stipulated not to enforce the payment of this penalty until some time in 1877. This stipulation, however, is not considered binding by those best posted in the law bearing on the case.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Alaska News Items.

VICTORIA, June 21.—The steamship California arrived at Port Townsend June 18th, direct from Alaska, having on board all the government officers and troops, and the remainder of the stores, arms, ordnance, etc. The post at Sitka was abandoned on the 14th of June. The citizens of that place were apprehensive of immediate trouble with the Indians. They are left without any protection and no law of any kind, and are anxiously looking forward to the arrival of a revenue cutter or gunboat. The women and children are especially excited and alarmed. Meetings were to be held for the purpose of immediate organization and to appoint guardsmen at night to prevent the Indians from entering the town. The commanding officer before departure at the request of the citizens, removed the Indians as usual outside the fences and barricades; and it is the intention to adhere to this rule of keeping them out of the town at night.

The quartz mines are looking well, and the ledge in the Stuart tunnel widens as they go in. This tunnel is now in twenty-eight feet, and they have seven feet of good clear quartz.

At Fort Wrangel there is much depression. There is no one left to settle disputes and live; times are expected this winter.

The steamer carried off a slave girl belonging to one of the Indian chiefs. This chief resorted to every means save violence, to detain his property, and only consented to leave the ship when the planks were drawn in.

Reports from the Cassiar mines are very favorable. Dease creek is paying handsomely; McDame's creek is looking splendidly.

Met the Grappler near Alert Bay on the 17th of June.

The California brought down $20,000 treasure.

CANADA.

The Oka Indian Troubles.

MONTREAL, June 22.—The Oka Indians have returned to Oka, having been assured by Col. Amyst that they would not be arrested.

FROM SODA SPRINGS.

"Comparison" writing from Soda Springs under date of June 17th, sends the following:

Mr. Holsapple of Portland, has rented the hotel, stable, etc., and already quite a crowd throngs the parlors of his well kept house.

Crops are looking splendid in this vicinity, in fact I believe they never looked better at this season of the year, and I think Clackamas county will be able to boast as much grain per acre as any other county in the State.

The fine weather is bringing swarms of people in here, so that one not used to the change of the place, might almost imagine that a miniature war had broken out from the numerous tents pitched on either side of Rock creek, a stream flowing through the grounds, and that the hostile parties rendezvoused at Soda Springs.

Preparations are being made for a grand "picnickial" celebration on the Fourth of July. Everybody is invited to bring their "darters" sons and dinner baskets. Reading, speaking, and climbing greased poles, come first upon the list; then a grand procession to dinner, after which a sack race, plug uglies and various other "uglies," find their place. At night a grand ball, concert, etc.

Our little watering-place is steadily gaining in its numbers of campers, boarders, etc., and every Sunday finds a large number of the surrounding population of the country gathered in at the Spring, playing croquet, running, jumping, swinging, etc. The surrounding forests are traversed and ransacked by naturalists and lovers of nature, as well as by nimrods in quest of the game which abounds in these grand old woods.

THE TERRITORIES.

The ship Ventus, with 1,500 tons of iron for the Puyallup road, will soon be due at Tacoma.

The Tacoma Herald thinks old nature got in some of her sublimest work on Mount Rainier. Many people thought the same long ago.

A man named Kelly, at Skagit, accidentally shot himself while handling a gun a few days ago. The ball passed directly through the head, killing him instantly.

Several families from Cameron county, Pa., have arrived at Lewiston. They are well pleased with the country, and on their report fifteen or twenty families more will follow.

There are two small vessels in the seal business at Port Orford. There are thousands of the animals on the rocks about the mouth of the Coquille river, and they are destroying the fish so that the river is nearly valueless for fishing purposes. It is estimated that a full grown seal takes in sixty pounds of fish a day.

Another warehouse to hold 40,000 bushels of wheat, is building at Corvallis.

Legal Tenders in Portland—buying 94; selling, 95.

Silver Coin—4½@5 per cent. discount.

Domestic Produce

In this department of trade during the week there has been a fair degree of activity but no large movement if we except the wool clip, which has been coming forward quite freely, and as the tendency of prices at the East is rather upward than otherwise, dealers have been free shippers, the last steamer for San Francisco taking a large quantity to be sent East. Prices as a rule are steady and unchanged since last week's report. Wheat has experienced a decided decline, and holders who can do so prefer to ship to San Francisco, than to sell here at current rates offered. Generally domestic products are in liberal supply both for the local trade and for export.

Groceries.

Wholesale and jobbers' prices for staple groceries are as follows: Coffee, 20@21½c ₱ lb; sugars crushed in bbls., 15c ₱ lb, granulated 14¼, Island No. 1 11@11½, medium 10@10½, No. 2 8@9; salt, bag $12 per ton, ground rock $14, Liverpool coarse $18, do fine $22 50@25; syrups in kegs 82½c ₱ gal. in bbls. 75c; teas, Japan in papers 30@45c ₱ lb; Corbitt & Macleay's registered brands, extra choicest 45@47½c, extra fine 35@37½c, Oregon seal 55c; rice, China No. 1 6@6¼c, No. 2 5¾@6c, Sandwich Islands 6c, Japan 6c.

The American People.

No people in the world suffer as much with Dyspepsia as Americans. Although years of experience in medicine had failed to accomplish a certain and sure remedy for this disease and its effects, such as Sour Stomach, Heart-burn, Waterbrash, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Liver Complaint, coming up of the food, low spirits, general debility, &c., yet since the introduction of GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER we believe there is no case of Dyspepsia that cannot be immediately relieved. 30,000 dozen sold last year without one case of failure reported. Go to your Druggist and get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try it. Two doses will relieve you. Regular Size 75 cents. Agents, Crane & Brigham, Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco.
